TURKS ACCEPT TERMS GRAND OBSERVANCE OF CITY'S ANNIVERSARY--FIRE DEPT. PARADE EXERCISES IN SCHOOLS

Of Peace Proposed by the European Powers--Turkey Shall Abandon Claim to Crete

CONSTANTINOPLE, April 1.—The Turkish government today declared that it unreservedly accepted the terms of peace proposed by the European powers.

The foreign office handed the Ottoman acceptance to the dean of the diplomatic corps, this morning, accompanied by an expression of thanks to the powers for their mediation.

The terms of mediation offered by the European powers to Turkey, and to the Balkan allies were as follows:

- 1.—The frontier of the Ottoman empire in Europe shall start at Enos and following the course of the Maritima then that of the Ergene shall end at Saida. All territories situated to the west of this line shall be ceded by Turkey to the allied states with the exception of Albania, the delimitation of which shall be fixed by the powers.
- 2.—The question of the Aegean islands shall be settled by the powers.
- 3.—Turkey shall abandon all claim to Crete.
- 4.—The powers cannot favorably entertain the demand for indemnity, but they will admit the allies to participate in the discussions of the international commission in Paris for an equitable settlement of their participation in the Ottoman debt and in the financial charges of the districts to be handed over to them. Turkey is to be allowed to take part in the labors of this committee.
- 5.—The Greek powers declare at the same time that as soon as these bases are accepted hostilities shall cease.

On Friday last Bulgaria notified her acceptance of the offer of mediation, but persisted in her demand for a war indemnity and declined to agree to the suggested frontier and proposed to substitute a frontier line from Midia on the Black sea to the Gulf of Saros at the top of the peninsula of Gallipoli.

MAN DROPPED DEAD

Dennis F. Reardon Victim of Heart Disease

Dennis F. Reardon, an employee of the Co-operative Coal Co., dropped dead about 1 o'clock this afternoon at the Co-operative coal yards on Meadowcroft street. The man was standing on a stool and joking with some of his friends at the yard when he was suddenly stricken and toppled off his chair without the least warning symptom. Dr. Boyle, who happened to be passing at the time, was immediately called to assist him, but declared that the case was one of heart failure and that the man was dead.

Mr. Reardon was one of the oldest employees of the Co-operative company, having been with them for a period of some 20 years in the capacity of teamster. He resided at 195 Fletcher street, with his family. Besides his wife, deceased leaves a son and several daughters.

Apparatus and Members of Department Presented Imposing Pageant ---Many Visitors in City

This was one great big day for Lowell. It was "Lowell Day" in every sense of the word and the board of trade and others responsible for the event are to be commended and congratulated. The visitors who came from far and near were delighted with the very hearty receptions they received and Lowell added a rosy number of links to her chain of friends.

It is quite a long way back to the day when Lowell stepped the boundary from town to city. It is just seventy-seven years ago today that she became a city and a great work has been done here since that time. Great business has been established, fine buildings have been erected and her people have been good Christian people. Lowell has had her ups and downs, but it's an old saying, and a true one, that you can't keep a squirrel on the ground. It is the disposition of Lowell.

The free cars were a well patronized feature of Lowell day and they brought large numbers of out-of-town people to the city to take advantage of the bargains at the stores and generally aid in celebrating the day.

The parade in which Lowell's fire department was shown off to good advantage was probably the most interesting feature of the day. It was interesting alike to visitors and to Lowell numbers. The merchandise of all descriptions that met their eye in every direction they examined minutely and according to the clerks, much of this will be found in the homes of the different towns by tomorrow morning. The visitors did not come empty handed. They were impressed with the quality of the goods which they saw and with the reasonableness of the prices. And they kept the clerks busy filling orders. Possibly one reason to which this brisk business may be attributed was the attraction shown by the clerks themselves to their suburban customers for many of these shoppers commented on this pleasing fact before they had left for home.

To many of the younger women the millinery shops were points of great interest. The window displays of these were always surrounded by groups of no mean size, the members of which all people to keep on climbing and we are getting there every day.

We are not ashamed to look back upon our past and when we look into the long avenue of the future and see the good there is for each one of us to do, we realize after all what a beautiful thing it is to work and to live and be happy.

The public and parochial schools observed the day by appropriate exercises and the board of trade was represented at the public schools by the following men:

people and the fire ladders made a great hit all along the line.

Stores Were Crowded

Many persons, especially middle aged women, came to Lowell who had not walked the streets of this city for almost a year. To these, the stores were naturally of great attraction. During the afternoon throngs could be seen about Merrimack and Central streets, now stopping before this window display, now before that, always keenly interested in the goods and the prices which were there displayed for their benefit. In the stores, too, especially the large department emporiums, the visitors were to be seen in great admired the varied styles of enticing head trimming which the hats and in many instances dropped into the establishments to make a more careful survey of the newest creations and in many instances to have an order filled them. At the soda fountains in the different drug and candy stores were to be seen, too, little knots of women of all ages, discussing the bargains which they had made or contemplated making over a glass of ice cream soda or a coffee ice. From the conversation that so briskly kept going among them it could easily be perceived that Lowell day was making a hit with them and that they appreciated the efforts of the board of trade and the business men of Lowell in giving

Many Speakers Deliver Addresses —Medals for Prize Essays— Patriotic Programs

Lowell day, which was generally observed about the city today, was fittingly celebrated in the various schools with fitting exercises of an historic and patriotic character. The feature of the day for those schools was the awarding of the medals to the winners in the prize essay contest which was held under the auspices of the board of trade. The programs of the exercises included many essays dealing with the history of the city, readings and recitations, songs and addresses by representatives of the Lowell board of trade, who were delegated by that body to present the medals to the winners of the competition. In every case these exercises showed the good results of careful preparation on the part of pupils and teachers.

HIGH SCHOOL

At the high school the program was as follows:

Declaration, "Lowell," F. T. Greenhaile, Mr. Max Goldman, quartet, "Oh Who Will Ope the Downy," Edith R. Sanders, Dorothy I. Driscoll, Teresa McDermott, Ethel B. Thompson, recitation, "The Lowell High School," Part I, Mr. Charles Abels, reading, "The Lowell High School," Part II, Miss Katherine Darracott, solo, "The Vale of Dreams," Mr. Charles D. Whidden, recitation, "The Song of the Loom," Lillian E. W. Thompson, Miss Pauline Carver, quartet, "Sweet Kitty Clover," Edith R. Sanders, Teresa McDermott, Dorothy I. Driscoll, Ethel B. Thompson.

HIGHLAND SCHOOL

At the Highland school a very elaborate program of exercises was held in honor of Lowell day. This had of course, been planned ahead and much time spent in its preparation and the good results of the efforts of all concerned were evident. The numbers included the following: Salute to the Flag and singing of "America," school recitation, "Our Flag," Walter Bagshaw, recitation, "Love of Country," George Lalline, recitation, "The True American," Edmund Douglas, singing, "Greenhaile Hymn," school children, recitation, "The Civic Creed," Roger Clapp, recitation, "Truth," Dorothy Stevens, song, "Winter Lullaby," Donald Jellison, recitation, "The Merry Brown Thrush," Mollie Washburn, recitation, "To a Waterfall," Floris Brown, readings, "Historic Points in Lowell," Arnold Howard, Lillian Abbott, recitation, "What Makes a City," Annabel Gordon, reading of the prize essay, "Lowell in the Civil War," written and read by Marion Dexter, The Mr. Abel Campbell, representing the board of trade made the presentation of the medal to Miss Dexter. His speech was as follows:

Abel R. Campbell's Address

Mayor O'Donnell, the graduation exercises of the Lowell Evening High school, last evening, said "The work of the chief executive of this city is replete with trials and tribulations. It might be said about the work of a school committee, however, it is a pleasant task and is not ing them an opportunity to visit the city in a manner, its guests for the day.

Visited the Big Mills

Probably most of the employees of the great industrial concerns which have made Lowell famous as a manufacturing center all over the country were at first a little mystified at seeing so many visitors at their respective places of employment today. Those were the "Lowell day" visitors. About all the large manufacturing companies of the city threw open their doors and cordially invited the visitors to look over their premises and to see for themselves just how the different articles manufactured here are made. Some of the textile mills were visited and the visitors enjoyed seeing the machinery of the mills, the process of manufacture. The wonderfully contrived machinery and the perfect system of working which is to be found in these mills was a revelation to some of the out of town folks.

Throughout the day scores and scores walked through the various departments of the mills, starting at the beginning where the first manufacturing process is commenced and following the different parts of the machinery until they had seen the cloth in its completed state. In plain, everyday language the mill officials who so kindly conducted the visitors through the establishments explained the working of the complicated machinery, and gave them a mighty fair idea of how cloth is manufactured and of the immensity of this, the chief industrial enterprise of the city.

Visited Sun Building

Besides visiting the mills, our suburban friends dropped in at the machine shop and shoe factories and were shown over those plants by the courteous, capable, of course, everybody who dignified from the special cars which were used to take the fall in the sun building and not a few visitors held this latest of Lowell's business blocks. The splendid entrance which has attracted so little admiring comment attracted their attention; the instantaneous double elevator service, too, was appreciated, but it was the magnificent view of the city and surrounding country from the top floor that held the many visitors with delight. Not a few also were through the newspaper plant and were shown the long battery of linotype machines, the array equipped stereotyping and composing rooms and also the new press which was installed at the completion of the building.

Fire Department Parade

The fire department parade, the big feature of Lowell day, started at the street engine house at about 3 o'clock. The parade included practically all of the firemen of the city and over 30 pieces of apparatus, horses, and motorized. It was the first parade of its kind ever held in this city and it proved a very interesting feature.

The route was from Palmer street to Merrimack, then to the city hall, to Central and to Middlesex street. The firemen were cheered along the route of parade and while visitors cheered and admired, there were Lowell men and women heard to say that the magnitude of the department rather disappointed them. They did not know that Lowell had so formidable an array of firemen and fire apparatus; and the modern machines that go to make up the flying squadrons were much admired.

The parade was led by Chief Engineer Edward S. Hosmer, Lowell's veteran fire chief, who is soon, by his own request, to be placed on the retired list. He was followed by Chief of Police Sullivan in their runabouts. Then came Henry Fernald, the department electrician. He drove one of the ordinary light hitches of the department. The next in line was Chief of Firemen John Rinehardt at the wheel. Then the line-up was as follows:

Engine 1, George Lovett, driver; Engine 2, Paul Boynton, driver; auto pulling Engine 3, Charlie Slackpole in command; Engine 4, J. J. Harrington, driver; automobile, Harry Foster, driver; Engine 10, J. J. Flynn, driver; hose wagon, A. Kidder, driver; engine 6, S. H. Pendley, driver; hose wagon, J. Fletcher, driver; hose 5, R. W. Broadbent, driver; hose 7, T. J. Dwyer, driver; hose 8, with auto, Martin Russell, driver; hose 9, C. A. Rock, driver; hose 11, D. Finnegan, driver; hose 12, G. E. Schofield, driver; truck 1, W. Healand, driver; truck 2, Q. A. Foster, driver; chemical, George Dickers, driver; truck 3, F. O. Townsend, driver; chemical, F. F. Maker, driver; truck 4, C. S. O'Leary, driver. Then came the aerial truck with Bert C. Reed at the helm, under the water tower, with T. F. Saunders holding the ribbons, brought up the rear.

The Concluding Feature

The concluding feature of the day's celebration will be a banquet at Association hall, with Hon. John A. Sullivan and Hon. William S. McNary as the principal speakers. The banquet will be served at 6:30 o'clock and the reception committee will include the following:

REFUGEES LEAVE CAIRO, ILLINOIS

540 Houses at Zanesville Swept Away—Society Girls Taking Care of Babies

CAIRO, Ill., April 1.—The Ohio river rose steadily through the night and at seven o'clock today stood at a point between 522 and 523. The population was still early and the fact that the water had substantially passed the 52 mark caused considerable anxiety. All expected that the day would prove the crucial one in the fate of the city. The crest of the flood is expected to reach here today and if the levees hold it is the belief that the worst will be averted. Much trouble was experienced during the night in the drainage district along the Big Four levee. Three times slides occurred and only valiant work on the part of those watching it saved the day. Dozens of earloads of sandbags were placed about the weak spots and serious trouble was averted. Water seeped through under the concrete wall into the main street of Cairo today but the levees have no signs otherwise of weakening. A large force of men worked all night placing sandbags and other holdbacks along the city waterfront. Refuges continued to leave the city all night and crowds are still waiting at depots to get out.

PRISON CONTINUES TO RECEIVE MESSAGES OF SYMPATHY FOR FLOOD VICTIMS

WASHINGTON, April 1.—Messages continue to come to President Wilson today from foreign rulers expressing sympathy for sufferers in the western floods. King George of England cabled:

"I am greatly distressed at the news of the disastrous flood and the grievous loss of life caused by them. I desire to express to Your Excellency my deep sympathy with yourself and the people of the United States in your misfortune."

Other messages were received from King Emmanuel of Italy and Sultan Ahmed Rejdar of Persia.

540 HOUSES SWEEP AWAY AND 500 READY TO COLLAPSE AT ZANESVILLE

ZANESVILLE, O., April 1.—Believing that the necessity for troops in this city has passed, Col. C. C. Weinbrecht, in command here, stated last night that he would ask for the withdrawal of the soldiers as he believed they were more urgently needed in Ohio river cities.

The Muskingum river is again in its banks, having fallen ten feet yesterday. Society girls are busy washing and taking care of babies, so mothers can clean their homes. Col. Weinbrecht reported that 540 houses had been swept away. Five hundred more are ready to collapse. A committee has been appointed to inspect numerous business structures that are considered in dangerous condition.

It will cost $40,000 to repair the "Y" bridge. Railroad traffic on the Baltimore & Ohio railroad east was resumed today; passengers walking two miles over the flood stretch to reach trains.

Man Goes Insane

A span and a half of the Third street bridge was found eleven miles down the river. The Zanesville Furniture Co.'s plant was found 12 miles below here. Dan B. Gary, the owner, who was considered wealthy, is penniless. A man named Simpson, who lost everything, has become insane. The water supply was turned on at noon yesterday and the business district will have gas today. Electric lights are promised the last of the week. Several wagon loads of supplies were sent to points down the river today to starving farmers.

THE MISSISSIPPI CONTINUES TO RISE AT MEMPHIS, TENN.

MEMPHIS, Tenn., April 1.—The Mississippi river registered 35 feet today, a rise of eight-tenths of a foot in 24 hours.

SECRETARY OF WAR GARRISON LEFT FLOODED DISTRICT FOR WASHINGTON TODAY

CINCINNATI, O., April 1.—Satisfied that he had accomplished all the good he could in the flooded district, Secretary of War Garrison left Cincinnati for Washington early today. Owing to the high water, the secretary will be compelled to take a circuitous route. He will go by way of Knoxville, Tenn., Bristol and Lynchburg, W. Va.

THE STAGE OF THE OHIO RIVER WAS 69 FEET AT CINCINNATI

CINCINNATI, O., April 1.—The Ohio river here rose two-tenths of a foot during the night and early today the stage was 69 feet. Weather Forecasters here said they expected the river to rise another tenth, after which it probably would recede. The fall, he said, would be slow at first, because of the large amount of water above. River points report the river either stationary or falling slowly.

SERVANT DONATED WOMAN'S $1000 FUR COAT TO FLOOD SUFFERERS

WASHINGTON, April 1.—Red Cross officials in Ohio headquarters here today are on the lookout for a $1000 fur coat among the clothes sent for the relief of the flood sufferers. The coat belonged to a Baltimore woman who upon the receipt of news about the suffering in Ohio directed her servants to donate all the stately clothing around the house for relief of those in distress. The woman today donated a Red Cross headquarters that her maid had included the $1000 fur coat in the donation.

THE OFFICIAL FLOOD BULLETIN FROM WEATHER BUREAU AT WASHINGTON

WASHINGTON, April 1.—Today's official flood bulletin from the weather bureau says:

"The Ohio river at Cincinnati Tuesday morning was at a stage of 53.5 feet, 1.5 feet above flood stage. It will probably remain at about this stage during the next 20 hours and then begin to slowly fall."

"At Louisville the river Tuesday morning was within 3 feet of stage of 30 feet and still rising. The Cairo stage was 53.2 feet, 5.2 feet above flood stage."

BattleShip Practice

WASHINGTON, April 1.—With steam up and the flag of the Secretary of the navy flying at its peak the naval yacht Mayflower and its sister vessel the Dolphin were ready today when Secretary Daniels and Mrs. Daniels appeared aboard the former vessel prepared to pilot a party to the battleship practice off the Virginia coast. In the party practically all of the cabinet was represented. The inspection trip will cover two days, the return trip being made Thursday.

Tigers Football Squad

PRINCETON, N. J., April 1.—Thirty candidates for the Tigers football team answered Captain Baker's first call for spring practice yesterday and were put through an hour of stiff signal drill on the freshman field. A good percentage of them are new material from the freshman squad of last fall. Emmons, Fred Trenkman and Doolittle were the only varsity men to report besides Baker. In nearly an hour of signal drill Emmons took one eleven through all the more simple formations and many of the new plays.

Music Lovers of this city will soon be given an opportunity of hearing real grand opera at popular prices as the result of the efforts made by Manager Ward of the Lowell Opera House Company artists here.

Ever since it was announced that the members of the Boston Opera Co. would make a short tour after the close of the regular season, Mr. Ward has been making every possible endeavor to include Lowell in the list of cities to be visited.

Among the artists who will take part in the tour are Mme. Evelyn Scotney, the sensational coloratura soprano who has been the season's only rival to the great Tetrazzini, Jose Mardones, generally accepted as the world's greatest basso, Alfredo Ramella, and Rafael Roques, the two tenors who compare favorably with the best of the operatic stage. Rafael Fornari, for four years the first baritone of the Boston Opera Company, Miss Myrna Sharlow, a young dramatic soprano, whose marvellous voice has put her in the prima donna contraltos and Howard White, an exceptionally fine basso cantante.

Such an aggregation is seldom if ever heard outside of grand opera centers like New York or Boston, and Lowell is indeed fortunate in securing them for an engagement.

The program outlined for the tour will be partly concert and partly opera in its nature. It will include several concert numbers without costumes, and complete acts from well-known operas with costumes. Seats go on sale tomorrow morning.

H. F. Keith's Theatre

"The Telephone Girls," a clever musical act with six pretty "girls" in fetching costumes, a most energetic manager, and several songs and jokes, is the feature act of the H. F. Keith's theatre this week. Eddie Price is the new manager and to say that the rather unmanageable girls do not take kindly to him is putting it mildly. His attempt to handle the service are met with disdain and indifference, but he is good natured enough to forgive the girls. They are so bright, witty and pretty that the audience forgives them, too. As the six girls types range from the most extreme slenderness to the most extreme corpulence, the audience is assured of comedy in the well-known 67 varieties, and a few more.

The second part of the act is devoted principally to an elaborate sketch in which the girls, transformed into river sprites, do row, row, row, with a vengeance. In this act the manager is assisted by most of the young men and by a few of the old ones. The six girls are impersonated by the Misses Mildred Belknap, Alva Wilton, Queenie Martel, Laura Seaton, Goldie Pemberton and Alma Pemberton.

Martha Chaplin and Fred Lewis, billed as the two looney and called correctly give an exhibition of looney songs, dances, and telepathy that is very looney and laughable.

"The Tamer," played by Ernest W. Curtis and Miss Mabel Florence, is an exceptionally clever sketch in which a much despised husband who has been turned into submission turns the tables quickly but effectively and tames the tamer.

Cunningham and Marion who tumble and fall around as though they enjoyed it, are excellent comedians and acrobats.

Arthur, Richards and Arthur give a very refined musical act with some pretty songs and dances and some clever violin playing. One of the charming girls suffers a transformation before the end of the act and discloses a bright, athletic young man.

A brilliant, athletic young man in trousers of the most extreme London style and with a very engaging smile, told stories in an inimitable drawl and played some surprising music on a month organ. He also did some eccentric dancing to his own "music."

"The Stewards," two women, open the bill with a clever and unusual acrobatic act.

The subject of this week's talking picture is the laboratory scene from Goethe's Faust, in which the Mephisto is wonderfully played by Alan Ramsey. In voice and gesture the illusion is perfect and one can judge of the future possibilities of the talking picture from this splendid reproduction.

Merrimack Square Theatre

"Rainbow Bridges," presented by Miss Grace Young, assisted by Howard Stanley and Walter Woods, is one number of an excellent bill that is given at the Merrimack Square theatre this week. The sketch is very well staged and is sure to be a favorite among the patrons of this theatre. Miss Young plays her part in a pleasing way while most of the other members of the company are equally well.

This week marks the return of the Temple Players and they are seen in a pleasing sketch called "Sandy Valley folks." The piece has plenty of music and dancing and introduces several song numbers that are new to the people of Lowell. The comedy part of the entertainment is brought out by Miss Rose Maule and Mr. Foley and Geo. Davis. Helen Drain, a new member of the company sings, "The Month of June is a Song of Love" and George Lewis, who needs no introduction to the theatre goers of Lowell sings, "Time and Tide" Walter Davis, a Lowell boy, appears with this company and wins favor from the audience. The other numbers are also good. Miss Marie Laurent, a soloist, appears in connection with this act and sings many catchy songs that bring her applause.

"The Gypsy Violinist," plays both the popular and classical music and makes a great "hit" with the audience. Her ability to play either the songs of the day or more classical offerings win her favor.

George Davis, who has made many friends in this city gets long applause with his illustrated songs, "Dear Old Ireland" and "Will You Be Waiting When My Ship Comes In?"

A feature among the photo-plays this week is a film that lasts about ten minutes taken from the great parade held in this city on Saturday. The photo shows several views of different parts of the parade and also shows companies arriving from out of town and views of those who gathered on the sidewalks to witness the parade. Probably the most popular of these pictures is the one showing St. Peter's Holy Name society accompanied by the Lowell Cadet band. Other pictures show the Holy Name society of St. Patrick's church, the chief marshal, and a view is given of Garde Frontaine. These pictures are very good and will without doubt be interesting to those who appear in them and those who witnessed the parade.

The speech of Patrick Henry is reproduced among the talking pictures and "The Whistling and Singing Farmer Boys" is given. Both are good, the speech of Patrick Henry being excellent. As last week the talking pictures are given without a hitch, and the movements of the performers are in perfect accord with the sound and voice of the instrument.

The photo-plays this week are very good and besides some good comedy subjects there is "The Battle of Bloody Forge" which is a film of extraordinary merit.

The complete program is well selected and arranged, and the success it secured yesterday augurs well for the remaining performances.

The Playhouse

Lowell people are to have an opportunity of witnessing an exceedingly good comedy drama in "The Turning Point," the initial performance of which drew a good audience to the Playhouse last evening. The humor deftly intermingled between the strong dramatic situation which the actresses tends to add to its attractiveness, the satisfying manner in which the Drama Players, directed by Mr. Kendal Weston, bring the attention and the characters out of their best advantage, is a real treat.

"The Turning Point" is a play of real interest and one which the Drama Players delight in presenting, for it affords them the best of opportunities for a display of their real worth and for pleasing the audience. The opening is in Virginia, the scene representing a beautiful old fashioned Southern mansion. As to the story of the piece, to relate it here would mar the pleasure of those who are yet to witness the play.

The principal character, a Virginian, "Brent Breckenridge," is well portrayed by Mr. J. Anthony Smythe, who appears to just naturally at right into the part, so naturally, in fact, that it shows no mechanical traces of the results of the required rehearsal. His part is not acted as though the words were placed in his mouth, but rather as though it was a part where he actually experienced the emotion which usually experienced out by the production. Such is the pleasing style of Mr. Smythe's work.

"Alone Anderson" is in reality Miss Bertha Mann, but the latter throws aside her identity for a time to present this beautiful character and to delight the audience, a feat which the accomplished actress accomplishes. Like Mr. Smythe, her work is possessed of that quality of ease and there is naught of the mechanical recital of lines. The other members of the cast it must be said that their acting is no less above the ordinary than that of those already mentioned. As that of those already mentioned, it is remarkable good. The part which falls to his lot this week is a very difficult one which to his cleverness and ability was rather an advantage than a disadvantage.

Opera House

The engagement of the Loneragan Players will close this week at the Opera House. The Loneragan Players, this, their last week, are presenting "The Confession," a play in four acts by James H. Black and a very stirring play. It has been played here before, but the matter is different, and the acting, perhaps, than by the Loneragan Players.

If the attendance had been in keeping with the merits of the play and the players, the house last night would have been crowded, but the attendance was small and there was little to report about the players, except the success of the piece itself.

The opening act shows a Roman Catholic priest, hearing the confession of a murderer. The man has confessed his crime, but because the weight of the confession is too heavy for him to bear, the priest grants absolution and the murderer departs. The inflection is also that he must never allow any innocent person to be charged with the crime, but that he must, in such a case, shield any other suspect by assuming the burden of guilt himself. It so happens that the brother of the priest, a not-do-well, has words with the murdered man a short time before the latter is killed. The two grapple and during the encounter a knife is fixed from somewhere, this shot causing murder.

The priest's brother is tracked to his home and is there placed under arrest. Later on he is condemned to die for the crime, but in the meantime, the real murderer has been arrested for another crime and is confined in prison for it. Knowing of the charges against the innocent priest, which could not be dropped, he is put to him and then dies. "The Confession" will be given twice daily during the remainder of the week.

Relative to the closing, this week, of the engagement of the Loneragan Players, Manager Ralph A. Ward of the Opera House, said:

"The company will have finished the contract time of eight weeks on Saturday of the present week. There have been many contracts pending for months which could not be dropped some of them date as far back as November and it is simply impossible to avoid playing them. We could not have these companies breaking in on stock performances with any profit to the theatre, and so decided that it would be the best for all concerned to play the schedule as originally laid out, beginning with the fall season, a permanent stock organization will be stationed at the Opera House, to continue throughout the season. Plans are under way at the present time for this. Options will be secured on the best of plays and during the summer months the company to play here will be selected with great care."

BOSTON OPERA CO. STARS

Music lovers of this city will soon be given an opportunity of hearing real grand opera at popular prices as the result of the efforts made by Manager Ward of the Lowell Opera House Company artists here.

Ever since it was announced that the members of the Boston Opera Co. would make a short tour after the close of the regular season, Mr. Ward has been making every possible endeavor to include Lowell in the list of cities to be visited.

Among the artists who will take part in the tour are Mme. Evelyn Scotney, the sensational coloratura soprano who has been the season's only rival to the great Tetrazzini, Jose Mardones, generally accepted as the world's greatest basso, Alfredo Ramella, and Rafael Roques, the two tenors who compare favorably with the best of the operatic stage. Rafael Fornari, for four years the first baritone of the Boston Opera Company, Miss Myrna Sharlow, a young dramatic soprano, whose marvellous voice has put her in the prima donna contraltos and Howard White, an exceptionally fine basso cantante.

Such an aggregation is seldom if ever heard outside of grand opera centers like New York or Boston, and Lowell is indeed fortunate in securing them for an engagement.

The program outlined for the tour will be partly concert and partly opera in its nature. It will include several concert numbers without costumes, and complete acts from well-known operas with costumes. Seats go on sale tomorrow morning.

H. F. Keith's Theatre

"The Telephone Girls," a clever musical act with six pretty "girls" in fetching costumes, a most energetic manager, and several songs and jokes, is the feature act of the H. F. Keith's theatre this week. Eddie Price is the new manager and to say that the rather unmanageable girls do not take kindly to him is putting it mildly. His attempt to handle the service are met with disdain and indifference, but he is good natured enough to forgive the girls. They are so bright, witty and pretty that the audience forgives them, too. As the six girls types range from the most extreme slenderness to the most extreme corpulence, the audience is assured of comedy in the well-known 67 varieties, and a few more.

The second part of the act is devoted principally to an elaborate sketch in which the girls, transformed into river sprites, do row, row, row, with a vengeance. In this act the manager is assisted by most of the young men and by a few of the old ones. The six girls are impersonated by the Misses Mildred Belknap, Alva Wilton, Queenie Martel, Laura Seaton, Goldie Pemberton and Alma Pemberton.

Martha Chaplin and Fred Lewis, billed as the two looney and called correctly give an exhibition of looney songs, dances, and telepathy that is very looney and laughable.

"The Tamer," played by Ernest W. Curtis and Miss Mabel Florence, is an exceptionally clever sketch in which a much despised husband who has been turned into submission turns the tables quickly but effectively and tames the tamer.

Cunningham and Marion who tumble and fall around as though they enjoyed it, are excellent comedians and acrobats.

Arthur, Richards and Arthur give a very refined musical act with some pretty songs and dances and some clever violin playing. One of the charming girls suffers a transformation before the end of the act and discloses a bright, athletic young man.

A brilliant, athletic young man in trousers of the most extreme London style and with a very engaging smile, told stories in an inimitable drawl and played some surprising music on a month organ. He also did some eccentric dancing to his own "music."

"The Stewards," two women, open the bill with a clever and unusual acrobatic act.

The subject of this week's talking picture is the laboratory scene from Goethe's Faust, in which the Mephisto is wonderfully played by Alan Ramsey. In voice and gesture the illusion is perfect and one can judge of the future possibilities of the talking picture from this splendid reproduction.

Merrimack Square Theatre

"Rainbow Bridges," presented by Miss Grace Young, assisted by Howard Stanley and Walter Woods, is one number of an excellent bill that is given at the Merrimack Square theatre this week. The sketch is very well staged and is sure to be a favorite among the patrons of this theatre. Miss Young plays her part in a pleasing way while most of the other members of the company are equally well.

This week marks the return of the Temple Players and they are seen in a pleasing sketch called "Sandy Valley folks." The piece has plenty of music and dancing and introduces several song numbers that are new to the people of Lowell. The comedy part of the entertainment is brought out by Miss Rose Maule and Mr. Foley and Geo. Davis. Helen Drain, a new member of the company sings, "The Month of June is a Song of Love" and George Lewis, who needs no introduction to the theatre goers of Lowell sings, "Time and Tide" Walter Davis, a Lowell boy, appears with this company and wins favor from the audience. The other numbers are also good. Miss Marie Laurent, a soloist, appears in connection with this act and sings many catchy songs that bring her applause.

"The Gypsy Violinist," plays both the popular and classical music and makes a great "hit" with the audience. Her ability to play either the songs of the day or more classical offerings win her favor.

George Davis, who has made many friends in this city gets long applause with his illustrated songs, "Dear Old Ireland" and "Will You Be Waiting When My Ship Comes In?"

A feature among the photo-plays this week is a film that lasts about ten minutes taken from the great parade held in this city on Saturday. The photo shows several views of different parts of the parade and also shows companies arriving from out of town and views of those who gathered on the sidewalks to witness the parade. Probably the most popular of these pictures is the one showing St. Peter's Holy Name society accompanied by the Lowell Cadet band. Other pictures show the Holy Name society of St. Patrick's church, the chief marshal, and a view is given of Garde Frontaine. These pictures are very good and will without doubt be interesting to those who appear in them and those who witnessed the parade.

The speech of Patrick Henry is reproduced among the talking pictures and "The Whistling and Singing Farmer Boys" is given. Both are good, the speech of Patrick Henry being excellent. As last week the talking pictures are given without a hitch, and the movements of the performers are in perfect accord with the sound and voice of the instrument.

The photo-plays this week are very good and besides some good comedy subjects there is "The Battle of Bloody Forge" which is a film of extraordinary merit.

The complete program is well selected and arranged, and the success it secured yesterday augurs well for the remaining performances.

The Playhouse

Lowell people are to have an opportunity of witnessing an exceedingly good comedy drama in "The Turning Point," the initial performance of which drew a good audience to the Playhouse last evening. The humor deftly intermingled between the strong dramatic situation which the actresses tends to add to its attractiveness, the satisfying manner in which the Drama Players, directed by Mr. Kendal Weston, bring the attention and the characters out of their best advantage, is a real treat.

"The Turning Point" is a play of real interest and one which the Drama Players delight in presenting, for it affords them the best of opportunities for a display of their real worth and for pleasing the audience. The opening is in Virginia, the scene representing a beautiful old fashioned Southern mansion. As to the story of the piece, to relate it here would mar the pleasure of those who are yet to witness the play.

The principal character, a Virginian, "Brent Breckenridge," is well portrayed by Mr. J. Anthony Smythe, who appears to just naturally at right into the part, so naturally, in fact, that it shows no mechanical traces of the results of the required rehearsal. His part is not acted as though the words were placed in his mouth, but rather as though it was a part where he actually experienced the emotion which usually experienced out by the production. Such is the pleasing style of Mr. Smythe's work.

"Alone Anderson" is in reality Miss Bertha Mann, but the latter throws aside her identity for a time to present this beautiful character and to delight the audience, a feat which the accomplished actress accomplishes. Like Mr. Smythe, her work is possessed of that quality of ease and there is naught of the mechanical recital of lines. The other members of the cast it must be said that their acting is no less above the ordinary than that of those already mentioned. As that of those already mentioned, it is remarkable good. The part which falls to his lot this week is a very difficult one which to his cleverness and ability was rather an advantage than a disadvantage.

GRADUATING EXERCISES OF EVENING HIGH SCHOOL; ADDRESS BY ASSISTANT SUPT. BURKE OF BOSTON

P. J. McHUGH
PresidentMISS MARION V. M. SIMPSON
SecretaryMISS ANASTASIA L. HORNE
Treasurer

With an attendance that nearly taxed the capacity of Associate hall, the graduation exercises of the evening high school were held last night and 28 young men and young women were awarded diplomas, the presentation being made by Mayor James L. O'Connell. A very enjoyable musical program was rendered by Hibbard's orchestra, and the address of the evening was given by J. E. Burke, assistant superintendent of the public schools of Boston. Mr. Lambert presided and introduced the speaker.

The stage was fittingly decorated with the class color, green, while in the background was a large rosette of red and white. The graduates were all seated on the stage, the girls mostly attired in white and carrying large bouquets, while the boys wore black and on the laps of the coats were pinned large green pins.

At 8 o'clock the orchestra struck up "Light Cavalry" by Sappé, as an overture, and this was followed by the reading of an essay on "American Womanhood," by Mary Eleanor Lily Tucker, salutatorian, and written by Miss Marion V. M. Simpson. The young woman was warmly applauded at the close of her reading.

The other parts of the musical program rendered by the orchestra, Miss Burke director, was as follows: "Duo for Flute and Clarinet," "Rondo" (Dargaud), Messrs. Bissouette and Larkin; selection, "The Opera Ball," (Klein), mazurka, "Apropos," Navarra; Mexican dance, "Dark Eyes," Moret; finale, "Honor Band," Boehmlein.

Mr. Burke's Address
The speaker of the evening was Mr. J. E. Burke of Boston and his address was very interesting. His subject was "Service" and his remarks were in part as follows:

"It seems to me that this life of ours is a life of service. It matters very little what the character of the service may be, provided it be honest, disinterested service. All forms of human labor are ennobling. Indeed, we would think that manual labor, from its contact with nature and nature's laws, would inspire even more than intellectual pursuits.

"This service must be a personal service, and so we magnify the individual, and the individual service. Yet we realize this: that while the profoundest sorrows and the most transcendent joys must be borne by the individual alone, yet the individual is incomplete.

"I would not say to these young people here tonight that it is necessary for every girl to become a Florence Nightingale or a Joan of Arc; or that it is necessary for every boy to become a Nathan Hale or a Father Damien; but I would say that it is necessary for them to get into their lives the spirit of self-sacrifice. Then we find ourselves in the field of the brotherhood of man, and comprehend its significance. We have invited the world, and the world has generously responded. We have the world with us in these great cosmopolitan cities of ours. We want to be very careful that our regard for our fellow men is not parochial, is not circumscribed. We want the sympathetic relation that is far-reaching.

"I do not know but we sometimes make a mistake in these cosmopolitan cities, in our failure to recognize racial traits, racial characteristics and racial peculiarities. I believe these should be recognized and cherished. I believe that those boys and girls whose fathers were born in other lands should enter into the spirit of all that is best in these nationalities from which they spring; that they should go out, as society with others, and extract all that is best in them. We do have these great racial traits that distinguish us from others, let us cherish and protect them; but at the same time let us not become parochial. We can unite, whatever our extraction may be, in the support of great principles. We all want good schools, we want a clean press; we want a wholesome theater; we want libraries and hospitals that contribute to the people's wants; we want good government; and we can unite in the attainment of these essential attributes of society. Then, having attained these, we can unite upon some great platform of principles, something like this: I care not how a man may differ from me socially, racially, politically or religiously; if he is an honest man I will strike hands with him and together, unflinchingly, we will strive for and attain the advancement of that civilization of which we are a part, to the purpose that in the amalgamation of the races here in American soil, there shall be produced a class of people better than any that has been evolved in all the cycles of time.

"My young friends, this form of service to which you and I are engaged must be a patriotic service. I do not come here tonight to teach patriotism. Patriotism comes to us in the air we breathe; but the Germans have a word which means the spirit of the times. It is that spirit of patriotism which we must keep alive. We hear much in these days about universal suffrage and it is all very good. We would not minimize the ballot. It gives us opportunity to approve or to rebuke, and so we believe in its extension, because that is the spirit of democracy. But in the mechanical performance of that duty, we perhaps exhaust five minutes. In other words, the mechanical work of voting is inconsequential. It is the spirit of our service that we need to emphasize.

"Upon what depends the stability, the integrity, the endurance of this great republic that we love so truly? It does not depend upon the army or upon the navy; not in the tradition that goes backward and finds its origin in the divine right of kingship; not upon the great masses of mortar and brick and stone that go to make up the material aspect of your city. It does not depend upon our vast material resources. It depends upon the emotions, the sentiments, the pulse beats, the heart throbs, the lives, the hopes, of the great mass of people that go to make up the civilization of ours. This brings us, then, to a realization of the spirituality of our service; to so train, so nourish, so breed over these emotions and these faiths of ours, that they shall respond to everything that is noble and of good repute."

At the close of his remarks the orator was given a real ovation. Charles Henry McDermott wrote the valedictory on "American Citizenship" and the paper was read by George Robert Tobin.

The class gift to the school was a fine framed picture of Niagara Falls, the presentation being made by the class president, Patrick John McHugh. The gift was accepted by Dr. J. H. Lambert, chairman of the school committee, who paid a flattering tribute to the evening class of 1913, and closed by wishing them all success and prosperity.

Honorable Mention
The following names were read by Supt. Molloy, who explained that they had received honorable mention by the school authorities, and he exhorted them to carry through life the qualities that have enabled them to succeed in their school work.

For attendance: Leo A. Boucher, Richard F. Condon, Francis M. Flanagan, Thomas F. Loran, Namay A. Namatallah, Mildred E. Stollhoff. For scholarship: Marguerite M. Casey, Caesar Coppens, Walter F. J. Mayor O'Donnell's Address
The diplomas were presented by Mayor O'Donnell who said:

My Dear Graduates:
As mayor of Lowell the pleasant duty has been upon me to present to you your diplomas and the congratulations and best wishes of the city of Lowell. I assure you, it is a pleasant duty in that, for in this work-a-day city of ours where the majority have not the opportunity to avail themselves of the education afforded by our day system, you, your voluntary action and your success in this work-a-day city of ours, is a shining example to all others. In this age of unceasing competition, training counts in every walk of life, and aside from the definite studies that you have pursued as students at this school, your work has trained you along other lines that will make you more valuable at whatever avocation you may employ your future efforts.

Your motto, I am informed, is "Ambition is the road to success." From the moment that you registered in this school you entered upon that road, for were you not possessed of an honest and firm ambition, you never would have come here and have remained.

It is a fault of human nature to overlook the advantages that are close at hand, and that well applies to educational advantages offered by the city of Lowell. We offer to those who cannot avail themselves of the privileges of the day schools an excellent evening school system of elementary and high schools together with the newly organized industrial school. I firmly believe that our evening school system should be at least as good as our day school system, and from the success of the hundreds of your predecessors I am inclined to believe that this particular school is as good. There are two classes of evening school pupils, literates, who are obliged by law to attend law, who attend voluntarily. There are many in Lowell who, while able to read and write, would be greatly benefited by the evening schools but who, through pride or indifference (fail to improve the great opportunity thus afforded them. When you encounter such persons in your daily life, do not look down upon them, but rather try to help them. Explain to them that the advantages of the evening schools are theirs to receive if they will but make the sacrifice that you have made to acquire a firm foothold on the road to success. May your goal be not far away and may health and happiness attend you on your journey.

LOWELL DAY SUPPORTERS

The United Wall Paper Stores in the Colonial building have been selling a special Lowell Day Retail Sale all day long. They have displayed an announcement card in their wall paper windows, with a one dollar bill and a two dollar bill on each side of the announcement, telling the public that a one dollar bill is given them with every $5.00 purchase and a two dollar bill with every $10.00 purchase. They appreciate the effort the Lowell Board of Trade is giving the matter of inducing suburbanites to trade in Lowell and are returning to every $5.00 and $10.00 purchaser a $1.00 bill or a $2.00 bill, according to purchase. They report customers at going to press from almost all of the surrounding towns and cities.

Seated on the stage with the graduates were: School Committeemen Dr. J. H. Lambert, Perry D. Thompson, Dr. P. J. Bagley, J. C. Farrington, Abel R. Campbell, Supt. Molloy, John P. Connors, principal of the evening high school, Mayor O'Donnell and Mr. J. E. Burke of Boston.

NEW YORK CITY "DRY"
NEW YORK, April 1.—Mayor Gaynor's April 1 ukase—nothing to drink after 1 a. m.—struck the Tenderloin on schedule time early today, causing the worst riot in a decade. In places where proprietors were inclined to be recalcitrant the police turned the lights out and unceremoniously forced patrons out to the sidewalks. One obstinate gentleman who insisted on finishing a lobster was arrested. From Harlem to Park row, with few exceptions, liquor selling ceased promptly at 1 a. m. Cabarets and restaurants kept on serving food after that time but most of them closed entirely.

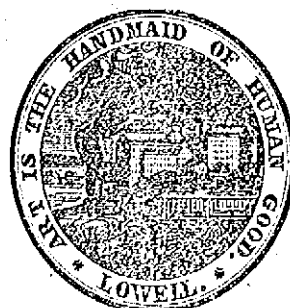

Being April Fools day diners took the matter pleasantly.

J. PIERPONT MORGAN

The death of J. Pierpont Morgan has ended the career of a man who has been a greater power in American financial and commercial affairs and who was more intimately associated with those than any other man of recent times. By boundless energy and a wonderful business capacity he had risen from the position of an obscure banker until he had become the strongest controlling factor in the most stupendous financial operations of the age. The most amazing characteristic of Mr. Morgan was his versatility. Among his business interests were: private investment securities; reorganization of railroads; consolidation of industrial properties; war loans; interests in the coal fields of Pennsylvania, Ohio, and Indiana, control of 20,000 miles of railroads, large American and British ocean transportation lines, and European traction railways. Besides these most important and wonderfully diversified interests Mr. Morgan organized and floated the securities of the United States Steel corporation in 1901, with a capital of $1,000,000,000 float of the United States bond issue of $2,000,000,000 during the Cleveland administration, and held directorships in countless other business enterprises.

It is evident that the genius of one man, however colossal, would be inadequate to meet the multitudinous demands of such varied and important interests as those for which the house of Morgan stands. It was all important that he should leave the administration of affairs to others, and in this was shown another side of his great ability. From the first he surrounded himself with men of genius and great executive ability, and although he always was the director in more than name, his subordinates carried out his policies to the letter, and made possible the vast consolidation of widely differing phases of business. He was quick to discover and appreciate ability in others, and during his long career he raised many obscure men to positions of great importance, realizing their business ability and latent power. He therefore leaves the conduct of his stupendous affairs in the hands of his son, J. P. Morgan, Jr., and a brilliant band of financiers who promise to carry out the plans of the great banker and financier who has died in the historic city of Rome.

The scene of Mr. Morgan's death recalls another phase of his varied career. In the world of art his name had become as famous as in the world of finance. He was a liberal patron of the arts, a connoisseur, a collector. He has enriched America by priceless treasures of painting, sculpture, tapestries, manuscripts, curios, and all forms of ancient and modern art. Whether the object he coveted was the stairway of an antique French chateau, the court of a Spanish palace, the pulpit of an Italian church, or the pride of a private Florentine gallery, he usually found means to accomplish his end and secure possession of the treasure. So great was his activity in purchasing and collecting that he was feared by the foreign governments, and in some cases special laws were framed to prevent J. P. Morgan from taking some valued treasure out of the country. He was president of the Metropolitan Museum of Fine Arts, New York, and some of his most valued pictures, sculptures, and other objects have been deposited there. About a year ago he gathered together the bulk of his art objects which had been loaned to galleries all over the world and donated them to the New York museum. So large and important is this collection that a special wing is now being constructed for its reception. Although for years J. Pierpont Morgan has been the most powerful influence in the financial affairs of America, if not of the whole world, his name will be better commemorated in the coming years because of this association with art. In finance as in art he was the modern Lorenzo de Medici, while his operations in the financial world surpassed those of the great Rothschild house of London.

Although the report of J. P. Morgan's illness a few weeks ago had an immediate depressing influence on the stock market, his death has not materially changed the financial outlook. Undoubtedly this is because the news of his illness prepared the world for the second greater calamity, and plans were made accordingly in advance. So wonderful and widespread was his influence that had his death been sudden and unexpected it might have immediately precipitated the financial panic that seems to have been averted now by carefully laid plans.

THE CHINESE LOAN

A few days ago a representative of an American financial syndicate called to Washington to acquaint President Wilson of the fact that a group of American bankers stand ready to advance to China a short term loan of ten million dollars, and a later long term loan of ten times that amount. Before entering on any negotiations, however, they wish to assure themselves that the government will take no action that would interfere with their designs or participate in any way in the transaction. The attitude of the syndicate is expressed in the words of Mr. Sears, their representative who after having seen the president, gave out this statement: "We want only a free hand. We heartily approve the administration's policy in withdrawing governmental aid from the six-power loan."

The recent well known action of President Wilson in thus withdrawing governmental aid and approval from a plan such as is now proposed to furnish a loan to the new Chinese republic has received world-wide attention, and general approval both here and abroad. It is something new in these days to find the head of a government actuated by such a high ideal as was here shown, as the aims of diplomacy are usually directed towards the material and selfish advancement of the nation with the moral issues as a secondary consideration. Of course no one thought that "the dollar diplomacy" towards the troubled republic, which found favor in the Taft administration, was prompted by philanthropic motives, and as the terms of the loan would have imposed very restrictive conditions, to meet which would be extremely difficult for China in her present circumstances, such a move as was contemplated would have been a check and handicap to the liberty of the new republic.

The present example of a business firm making sure of the attitude of the president before entering on a transaction of such magnitude and far reaching consequences as the proposed loan, is one of the healthiest signs of the times. It speaks volumes for the weight of the moral influence exerted by the president and points unmistakably to the fact that his utterances regarding the government's policy towards financial operations are taken seriously and are not regarded as an empty play of politics. If the aims of the syndicate are legitimate, it is not probable that the chief executive will interfere, as a loan such as the intended is a matter of private business which need in no way hamper the government in its international relations with the new Chinese republic. It is certain that if anything in the proposed negotiations are contrary to fair play, the president will speak and act without delay, as he has already demonstrated his desire to have justice and equity as the basic principles on which to form all our relations with the foreign powers. Then again his attitude was made known so well and so plainly at the time of his withdrawal of government support from the six-power loan that it is very improbable that any American financial syndicate would seek his approval before undertaking measures which are contrary to his publicly avowed principles. China stands badly in need of money as the work of reconstruction, begun by the new government, takes in every possible phase of national endeavor, and if the terms are not too severe, the loan suggested by the American syndicate would prove a great boon.

BOARD OF TRADE LIBERALITY

While advocating reforms and suggesting theoretical improvements it certainly cannot be said that the Lowell board of trade is not practical. In preparing for the observance of Lowell day the directors have provided free transportation to the city from within a radius of many miles, and they have thereby shown a spirit of energy, enterprise, and liberality that deserves the warmest commendation and support from the community. This providing of free transportation has meant a large expenditure of money which is meant to benefit ultimately, not the board of trade but the merchants and manufacturers of the city.

The directors of the board of trade are not men of leisure. They have large and varied personal interests that engross their attention and take up most of their time. In giving of this time and attention to matters of public interest and welfare they are actuated by a spirit of civic pride, for there is no immediate return to them except the feeling of gratification born of good work policy planned and well accomplished. Such a spirit is worthy of generous support and cooperation. If we all show our appreciation, by helping them in their many reforms we can do much to make Lowell a greater city and a better place to live in, both for ourselves and the citizens of the future.

In Middlesex, Central and Merrimack streets. The lieutenant-governor was quickly recognized all along the line and was given an ovation.

The demonstration on Saturday was not without its breath of romance, due to the efforts of Mayor Hurley, the wife of the city's famous chief executive, and noted match-maker. His honor was accompanied by his secretary, Miss Eva Wilson, and Mrs. John Hurley, of Salem and Miss Ida Cronk, of Houghton, Me., who is visiting in Salem. Miss Cronk is a sprightly young blonde as charming as of many a city. Mayor Hurley to find her a husband before her return to the Pine Tree state. The party had not been in city hall long before the Hon. and instructed Mayor Hurley informed the city messenger that he was too fine a young man to be traveling through life in single harness and then the Hon. proceeded to eloquently set forth the charm and singularity of the lady. The latter evidently knew what was in store for her and she was the first most gracefully to peer over her shoulder and brought order out of chaos at many a nervous glance and who had held her to the Press credentials, defying all efforts to make him give up the celebrated Foss-Hamlin convention in Boston, was completely befuddled for a few minutes and stood speechless, his face ashen, as he gazed at the picture of his future as the democratic leader of the state of Maine with one of the Pine Tree state's prettiest daughters as his betrothed. It was some time before Owen got back on the job as a member of the reception committee, and while he refuses to discuss the outcome of the affair, it can be guessed by witnesses that when the Salem party left Lowell Saturday night town was right there at the depot.

"Who's that dapper little fellow?" asked Mayor Hurley.

"That's Owen Monahan, our dandy city messenger," responded city solicitor Hennessy, to whom the mayor addressed his remarks.

"Is he married?" asked the Honorable John W.

"Not yet," answered Squire Hennessy.

"Good. How does he vote?"

"A dumpy, strong," was the reply.

"Great. That's all I want to know. They need them in Maine."

"Come here, Owen, my boy. I want you," cried the mayor, whereupon the city messenger was led blushing before the ladies and instructed Mayor Hurley informed the city messenger that he was too fine a young man to be traveling through life in single harness and then the Hon. proceeded to eloquently set forth the charm and singularity of the lady. EDITORIAL COMMENT

Conservation

New Bedford Times: The flood situation in Ohio and Indiana emphasizes the enormity of the problem of conserving the United States must solve if proper value is to be placed upon life and property. Within the last year swollen rivers have exacted fearful toll. To guard against a repetition of these staggering catastrophes is a work of mighty proportions that state and federal governments must apply themselves to with greater diligence. The life and industry of great sections of the country are in constant peril so long as present conditions are permitted to continue.

Unite Attitude

Forster's Democrat: It is a fair criticism of the attitude of the New York Yacht club toward the challenge of Sir Thomas Lipton for a race for the America's cup that it is more inclined to view it as a legal problem than a sporting proposition. In the statements that have been made and in its communications with Sir Thomas it is evident that it is upholding an abstract constitutional principle and that an international yacht race that would be fair to all concerned was secondary consideration.

Chinese Thanks

Worcester Post: The Chinese government thanks to President Wilson for his action on the six-power loan question and for his more inclined to view it as a legal problem than a sporting proposition. Turkish War

Lynn Item: The war has been quite as remarkable as the Russo-Japanese conflict. When it began the force that could be brought against Turkey was little known and hardly appreciated. Turkey has always pulled out of difficulties by working one European nation against the other, and it was thought that her latest trouble would be settled in the same manner. But the war has been full of surprises, and the end of Turkish rule in Europe is very near.

State Could be Saved $2,000,000 Annually

BOSTON, April 1.—Half the cases of insanity in Massachusetts are due to avoidable causes, and their prevention would save the commonwealth about $2,000,000 annually. This statement was made last night in Lorimer hall, Tremont temple, by Judge Harvey H. Baker, of the juvenile court, at the opening of the mental hygiene exhibit and conference which is to continue until next Friday afternoon.

Judge Baker, who is president of the newly organized Massachusetts Society for Mental Hygiene, made the introductory address. He explained that the aim of the society is to work for the conservation of mental health, raise the standards of care for those suffering from or in danger of developing insanity, and familiarize the public with methods of treatment.

Prof. Stewart Paton, of Princeton university, called insanity "a special form of disease or imperfect adjustment." Pointing out that there are more insane in our institutions than students in our universities and colleges, he traced the fact to poor heredity, bad educational surroundings, resulting in situations too difficult for adjustment. To prevent these maladjustments he urged better opportunities for training medical men in psychiatry and a reorganization of the schools.

Dr. Charles W. Eliot took for his subject the whole field of preventive medicine in relation to insanity and diseases of the nervous system. He showed the connection of these diseases with bad housing, congested city

Armies are composed mostly of neither, but of average men, who sometimes are cowards, sometimes heroes, who under stimulating conditions of good training, proper food, right leadership, can be made to do great things and who under bad conditions and without stimulus can be relied upon to run like hares and flounder like sheep."

Public Appreciation

Lawrence Telegram: The public may be an easy boss but it is also lacking in discrimination. A man, except he be of a very superior type, likes to work for an employer who shows appreciation of good work occasionally.

So with men occupying executive positions in the city's service. They generally do their best for the city when they know that the citizens appreciate the difference between good work and bad work.

Dr. Charles W. Eliot took for his subject the whole field of preventive medicine in relation to insanity and diseases of the nervous system. He showed the connection of these diseases with bad housing, congested city districts and unsanitary conditions generally.

The Christian religion seems to be the only one in which the principle of brotherhood is manifested in effort to do something for mankind. It has had much to do with the study of diseased minds. Science and religion have conspired to bring about the search for a better method of dealing with mental disease.

"Insanity can be induced by wrongdoing of a certain sort, but it also comes to those who are absolutely innocent of wrongdoing. The courts have a very large opportunity to improve their methods of dealing with persons already insane and with those threatened with insanity. An important part of the social service work of hospitals in the future will be the early reporting of cases of insanity."

When a Lowell citizen comes to the front, telling his friends and neighbors of his experience, you can rely on his sincerity. The statements of people residing in far away places do not command your confidence. Home endorsement is the kind that backs Doan's Kidney Pills. Such testimony is convincing. Investigation proves it true. Below is a statement of a Lowell resident. Not a stronger proof of merit can be had.

E. P. Sanborn, 79 State St., Lowell, Mass., says: "I have not had an ache or pain since I was cured by Doan's Kidney Pills two years ago. I willingly verify all I have previously said regarding the merit of this remedy. My back was very weak and lame and I suffered constantly from dull, nagging pains through my loins. HOPEDALE, April 1.—The foundry of the Draper Co., manufacturer of textile machinery, was closed today by a strike declared by the Industrial Workers of the World who called out men and boys. The other mills of the company were not affected by the trouble at the foundry. Nearly all the strikers are Italians, although some of the steel and iron workers who went out at a mass meeting last evening, ordered at a mass meeting last evening, through the town.

During the forenoon the strikers marched over from their headquarters in Milford and lined up in front of the Draper plant.

Dr. Wright moved that Mr. Sheridan be chosen chairman for the coming year and that the meeting be adjourned.

Also moved that Mr. B. O. Sanford be chosen to act as secretary and that motion was adopted.

Prohibition Officer Ramsey of Lowell, will address the members of the order.

John Chamber club tonight in the parish house of the St. Anne's mission.

The monthly meetings of this organization are proving very popular and it is expected that this meeting will be well attended.

KING'S PHYSICIAN

Visited Miss Helen Keller—Report That She Is Going to Teach Bob Jaimie Deeded

WRENTHAM, April 1.—Although Dr. Lorente, court physician to the royal family in Madrid, visited Miss Helen Keller here, where she was with Mr. and Mrs. John A. Sullivan, he was not regarding her attainments and hopes, the report that she is to return to Spain with him to instruct little Prince Juan, has been emphatically denied by John A. Sullivan, whose wife, Annie Sullivan Macy, has been the life-long teacher of Miss Keller.

Dr. Lorente came to this country to attend to the medical cases that are being developed for the benefit of deaf and dumb children.

Among other instructors of mute children he consulted Prof. John D. Wrentham, who he came to see.

Wrentham to visit Miss Keller, he was amazed at her intellectual attainments and questioned her regarding her life and her writings. The report that she was acting as an emissary from King Alfonso and Queen Ena for the purpose of engaging Miss Keller as an instructor was denied by Mr. Macy.

"There is not one bit of truth in it," he said.

Army's Aero Squadron

NEW YORK, April 1.—Doutz Thompson, Dr. Milling and William C. Sherman of the United States army's aero squadron, who broke the army's long distance record last Friday by flying from Texas City to San Antonio, Texas, duplicated the flight yesterday when they flew from Texas City to San Antonio, Texas, in a telegram received here today by Lieut. Col. Rober at Governor's Island.

Flaring against the wind, the two aviators covered the twenty-one miles in two hours and 50 minutes, 30 minutes more than the time consumed on the first trip.

MEDALS AWARDED FOR ESSAYS

Miss Hearn of the Sacred Heart School Won Gold Medal—21 Others Also Get One

The work of passing upon the grammar school essays written in the competition for the board of trade medals offered for the best essay on the subject "Lowell in the Civil War" was submitted to Editor Hugh F. Gill, of the Courier-Citizen and Editor J. Gallagher of The Sun. Each essay had a number and the judges had no means of knowing the names or identity of the writers.

With each essay was sent to Secretary Murphy a sealed letter containing the number of the essay and the name of the writer. These letters were not opened until after the judges had made their award and sent the following letter to Secretary Murphy of the board of trade:

Lowell, Mass., March 27, 1913.
Mr. John H. Murphy, Secretary, Board of Trade.
The undersigned judges of the twenty-two grammar school essays on "Lowell in the Civil War" have decided to award the prize to No. 3125.

One other, No. 3125, was first selected as the prize winner but was ruled out on account of its exceeding the 600 word limit. The other which was selected as the prize winner was No. 3125, which was written by Miss Marie Hearn of the Sacred Heart School. SEVERAL ASSAULT CASES

Were Aired in Police Court Today

Martha Sutherland, a girl who told the court that she was 21 years of age, was in court to answer the charge of drunkenness. Officer Sheridan told the court that this girl frequented a house of ill repute on Charles street and that usually both liquor and furniture were present at these parties. He said further that the girl was drunk last night when he placed her under arrest. When called to the witness stand the defendant pleaded guilty to drunkenness, but was very positive that outside of taking a few slasses of beer her conduct never varied from conventional standards. The judge questioned her sharply and thoroughly as to her age, occupation and where and how she spent her leisure time. Her father was also called up and the judge interviewed him and gave him a lecture, telling him that he ought to watch his daughter more carefully in the future. This is the second time that the defendant has been up on the same offense. The court extracted a solemn promise from her to the effect that she would change her way of living and placed her in care of Probation Officer Slattery, with a suspended sentence of one year to the Sherborn house, in case her good intentions did not materialize.

Assault and Battery

The case of Nicholas Pritham, charged with assault and battery on his wife, Georgiana, which was continued from yesterday's session in order to give the defendant a chance to procure counsel, was heard in court this morning. He was again minus a lawyer, however. The court ordered him sent to the house of correction for a period of four months.

Michael Rogers and his daughter, Mary Dwyer, both were presented to Judge Enright this morning on the charge of drunkenness. Judge Enright ordered them both placed on probation.

There was a very exciting time last night at the restaurant on Moody street owned by Arthur Champagne. It seems by the testimony in court that flector Luhaime insisted on taking over the management of the restaurant after he had consumed enough liquor to make him pugnacious. The charge was assault and battery on the proprietor. From the testimony of Champagne it seems that the defendant, besides threatening to thrash everybody in the place, also struck Champagne twice in the face with his fist. The defendant pleaded guilty and his case was continued until tomorrow morning for sentence.

Minors in Pool Room

George Langton, through his attorney, Lawyer O'Connor, pleaded guilty to a complaint charging him with allowing minors in his pool room. He was charged $10 for the expense of his trial.

The case of Antoni Zarneski, charged with assault and battery, was continued to answer of Deputy Downey. Lawyer McClure was counsel for the defense.

Charles Gagnon and Alexander Murray, both of whom were out on parole, pleaded guilty to the charge of drunkenness and were sent to the state farm. Thomas Cummings was also sent to the state farm for the same offense.

Gilbert Cyr, whose case was continued until today, was again committed to the state farm. Thomas Kelley, a third offender, received a suspended sentence to the state farm.

The case of Harry Billings, charged with drunkenness, was continued until Friday in order to learn more about it. Edmund Conneron, charged with the same offense, was bound over until Saturday for sentence. Martin E. O'Brien and John F. Murphy were each fined $5 for their second appearance for drunkenness. There were four $2 fines for first offenses and five releases by the probation officer.

BOXING, GOLF
AND ATHLETICSFamous Athletes, Who in Their Respective Seasons, Are Heroes of Thousands,
Have Pet Hobby When Off Duty—How Some of the Stars Enjoy Themselves

1—Ty Cobb and Ty Junior. 2—Ralph Rose. 3—Christy Mathewson, on left, playing checkers with Coach Robertson. 4—Jack Coombs. 5—"Chief" Bender. 6—Henry Irlinger. 7—K. O. Brown. 8—Ad Wolgast. 9—"Chief" Meyers. 10—Jim Jeffries. 11—Carl Morris.

Have you ever noticed that every athlete, amateur or professional, who has become famous has a pet hobby? Well, it's so.

Take Christy Mathewson, the New York Giants' famous pitcher, for instance. Matty likes to play checkers almost as well as he does baseball. He competed in several tournaments and came out with honors. During the training season Matty meets all comers and can be seen at the square board almost every evening indulging in his favorite hobby.

There are many star ball players who have taken up golf during the past few seasons and have become experts in this branch of sport. "Big Chief" Charley Bender and Jack Coombs of the Philadelphia Athletics are considered the best golfers in the Junior baseball organization. In the National league Heinie Zimmerman of the Chicago Cubs is considered the star golfer. It is said that Heinie has gone around the course in eighty and is thinking seriously of entering one of the tournaments next fall. Ball players claim that golf is a fine method of preparing for opening of the baseball campaign. In the two big leagues there are at least seventy mill tossers who have taken up golf.

Ty Cobb, Detroit's great player, declares next to baseball the automobile game is the best. Still, Tyros would sooner spend hour after hour playing with Ty Junior than anything else.

Hans Wagner of Pittsburgh is an expert basketball player and has a team of his own. This winter Wagner's team won forty out of forty-one games played. Honus was the star of the lot. Frank Chance believes growing oranges in Glendora, Cal., is one of the greatest things in the world outside of baseball. Tris Speaker and Joe Wood of the Boston Americans are farmers, and so is J. Franklin Baker of the Athletics.

Now look at the fighters. Jim Corbett believes he is a greater actor than he was a fighter. Jim Jeffries devotes considerable of his leisure time to playing baseball. Ad Wolgast when not training for a mill is a farmer, in Cadillac, Mich. He is also an automobile speed bug. Adolph likes nothing better than to tear up the roads with his auto. Jack Johnson is another. Some time ago the heavyweight champion believed he could defeat any autoist in the world. Much of the conceit in the auto line was taken out of him two years ago when he was defeated by Barney Oldfield in a match race at Sheepshead Bay, N. Y. When Carl Morris' fighting days are over it is believed he will seek a position as a stenographer and typewriter. Recently Carl purchased a machine, and he now believes he can operate it as fast as any expert. Next to fighting, Luther McCarty thinks cow-punching is the greatest sport. K. O. Brown thinks he is a real society leader when he dons a full dress suit and high hat.

Most of the wrestlers are farmers. Frank Gotch, the world's champion, owns the overalls and his big hat and walks miles behind the plow. Fred Deel, "Farmer" Burns and several other mat stars do the same. Zhyzco is a book worm. Irlinger, the middleweight champion of Europe, is a camera fiend.

Ralph Rose, the famous shot putter, believes he can defeat any amateur wrestler in the country. When not at his law practice or breaking records with the shot Ralph is doing mat work. "Chief" Meyers, the Giants' star catcher, harbors the thought that law is the only business in the world worth while outside of baseball. It is the same with all others.

St. Louis critics are crowning young Baumgardner with pitching laurels greater than Walter Johnson ever was invested with.

CO. G WON FROM CO. K SAGO-LOWELL LEAGUE

Winners Took 9 of the 12 Points

Company G again came to the front last night with a flash of the form that carried them to the head of the league at one time in the tournament. Co. G took nine of the possible 12 points in their athletic contests with Co. K at the Westford street armory. With the exception of bowling the Co. G men were far superior to their opponents although the shooting match was rather a close thing.

Co. K failed to put a basketball team on the floor last night and the game went to Co. G by default. Co. G has the strongest team in the armory in this form of sport and the Co. K men were willing to concede them the victory. An exhibition game was played, however, for the benefit of the spectators, with Co. G on the winning end of a 29 to 12 score. Canby of the winners played a great shooting game, scoring seven baskets from the floor and giving an all round exhibition of clever basketball. St. Peter also played a strong game for the Co. G team.

Company K won the shooting match by six points. Lieutenant Paul G. Co. G was high man with a shot of 77 to his credit.

Company K won the bowling game although the Co. G team took advantage of the Co. K team's error in the point that went with it. Captain of Co. K put up the highest total of 258. Kough had the highest single, 101.

The Foundry and Kitson Teams Winners

The Sago-Loewell bowling league rolled off two games according to schedule last night. The Foundry team were the winners in their match with the other team and the Kitson rollers defeated the Shippers. Neither game was very close. The highest score was made by Conley of the Kitson team. The Holme machines won their game from the Testers by the narrow margin of four pins in their Heine Electric-1, S. Cartridge league contest. The game was close and exciting throughout. Muller's total of 291 was high.

The Velvet Dept. team were badly outclassed when they met the Merrimack 8-pin shop bowling team last night. The final score stood 1352 to 125. Farrier and Panton of the winners were tied for first place honors with a total 251. The summaries of the various games follow:

GREAT INTEREST IN BOUT Between Gallant and Dohan-Other Bouts

The Lowell A. C. will offer for its star attraction on Friday evening a 12 round bout between Gilbert Gallant, the hard hitting Chelsea lightweight, and Johnny Dohan, the doughty Little New Yorker. The pair were matched to appear here several weeks ago but that week the meeting was discontinued. Since then both have been anxious to clash and their offering Friday night is looked forward to with pleasant anticipation by the members. Gallant has gained many friends here by his exhibition against George Alger and his clever fighting was well appreciated by all who witnessed the bout. Since he first appeared in Lowell Dohan has won a host of admirers and his 12 round battle with McDonough is still a topic of much discussion. At that time a great many were of the opinion that Dohan was entitled to at least a draw. Dohan is supremely confident that he will win Friday night's match and expects to accomplish the feat with quick dispatch. The show consists of four matches, two preliminary contests and a semi-final match between the clever little fellows. Johnny Cooper of Boston and Young Morgan of Manchester. The semi-final match should prove a very interesting number, as both are clever and aggressive boxers. Morgan is popular here and his work has met with great favor. Cooper is ex-national amateur champion of his class and comes here with a great record.

CABLEGRAM TO TEDDY Suffragettes Seek Aid in Behalf of Miss Emerson

Suffragettes Seek Aid in Behalf of Miss Emerson

LONDON, April 1.—The campaign was continued today with more energy than ever on behalf of Miss Zelle Emerson of Detroit, Mich., the militant suffragette who is undergoing two months' imprisonment in Holloway jail for window breaking and whose case has awakened widespread interest owing to her sufferings from the forcible feeding in prison after she had started a hunger strike.

A cablegram was sent to Theodore Roosevelt by Beatrice Harraden, the authoress and suffragette, which said: "I cannot believe that American men, a number of whom expressed to me during my recent visit to America their horror at the system of forcible feeding will remain indifferent when they learn that their fellow countrywoman, Miss Emerson, is now being forcibly fed in Holloway Jail and is in a precarious condition. Surely they will wish to protest against a continuation of this barbarity."

Following a suggestion made by Baron Von Hoorst of San Francisco a large number of American suffragettes are collecting various instruments used in the forcible feeding of prisoners. These include screws and pliers used to force the jaws apart, feeding tubes and other utensils. The collection has been lent by doctors friendly to the suffragists. It will be exhibited first in New York and then in other American cities.

in the treasury has to be checked up and the induction of former Gov. Burke of North Dakota as Treasurer under President Wilson has proven no exception to the rule.

The work now is going forward in the checking of accounts. With that finished the money in the vaults will be hauled out and counted but instead of counting it piece by piece, as has been done in several instances the amount this time will be checked by the package. This course has been taken in order to save time, as it has been only about three months since the money was counted last. Should the piece by piece count be followed it is said that it would take at least three months to finish the job.

LATE REV. JOHN T. LEE

Remains Were Laid to Rest This Morning

IMPOSING SERVICE HELD AT ST. MARGARET'S CHURCH

Large Delegation of Clergymen Present—Jefferson People Paid Tribute to Former Pastor

After solemn services conducted at St. Margaret's church in Stevens street, the remains of the late Rev. John T. Lee, a native of this city, and former pastor of St. Mary's church, Jefferson, Mass., where for 18 years he preached the gospel, were tenderly consigned to their last resting place in the Holy Sepulchre. The funeral was attended by a large number of clergymen from all over the state, as well as by a large delegation of parishioners from Jefferson. There were also delegations from the Knights of Columbus of Worcester. The local Fourth degree of the K. of C. and the teachers of the Lowell public schools, headed by Supt. Hugh J. Molloy.

The long cortege of mourners left the home of deceased's sister, Miss Alice T. Lee, 12 South Walker street, at 2.45 o'clock and wended its way to St. Margaret's church, where solemn services were held. The celebrant of the mass was Rev. Owen Toher of Leominster, who was assisted by Rev. William Grant of South Boston, as deacon and Rev. James W. Hickey of Beckett as sub-deacon. Rev. Chas. Galligan, pastor of St. Margaret's church, acted as master of ceremonies.

The attendance in church was extraordinarily large as deceased was well known in Lowell. He was the first priest to celebrate mass at St. John's hospital, and counted a host of friends in this city.

The choir, under the direction of Prof. Frederick G. Bond, which was augmented for the occasion, rendered the Gregorian mass. Mr. Louis Guilbault presiding at the organ. The solo of the mass were sustained by Messrs. James E. Donnelly, John J. Dalton, Edward Shea, and Miss Katherine Hennessy. Before the mass the celebrant was sung by the attending clergymen, Rev. John A. Deagan, pastor of St. Columba's church, and Rev. John P. Burns of St. Peter's church, sustaining the solos.

At the offertory, Mrs. E. Donnelly sang "Jesu Salvator Mundi," and at the elevation Mr. J. Dalton rendered Rosemary's "O Meritum Passionis," and while the body was being borne from the church the choir rendered the "De Profundis," the roles being sustained by Mr. Dalton and Mr. Shea.

In the close of the mass Rev. Philip O'Donnell of Boston delivered a warm eulogy, referring to the good work done by deceased during his 36 or 37 years of priesthood. He took for his text these words from the gospel: "He who lives and believes in Me shall not see death forever." The reverend gentleman spoke of Fr. Lee as a resident of this city, and also of his days at college, where he said he remembered well. He said the priest sacrificed himself so that one day he might meet Christ face to face. He spoke at length on the work accomplished by deceased as a priest in Spencer, Milford and Jefferson and other places where he preached the gospel, and said every one who met him wished to meet him again for to know him was to love him.

The bearers were: John Nolan and William W. Murphy, both of Lowell, and William Pendergast, Thomas Hennessy, William Sullivan, E. Rogers, Arthur Foster and William Harrington, all of Jefferson, Mass.

The ushers at the house and church were: William Cawley, Thomas Kelley, Elias McQuade, Jr., George Scannell, W. A. Driscoll and J. F. Grant.

The members of the Fourth degree, K. of C. of this city were headed by Dr. T. Carroll. And the delegation of the Knights of Columbus from Worcester consisted of the following: who represented Albamora council: Rev. Dr. J. J. McCoy, Edward J. McMahon, John J. Kittredge, John R. Dyer, Dr. W. J. Clifford, Thomas J. Carver, James F. McCarthy and Frank E. Murray, the latter of the Fourth degree.

A LITTLE NONSENSE

PROOF POSITIVE
"Has the doctor a large practice?"
"So large that when people have nothing the matter with them he tells them so."

HIS EXPLANATION.
"I don't understand them thermometers."
"It's simple enough. You see when it gets down cold the mercury sorter huddles together down in the bottom, so's to keep warm."

WOMANLIKE
Mrs. Wise—"I'm sure my new dress is becoming."
Mr. Wise—"Why?"
Mrs. Wise—"Why, all the women at our meeting today said it was so becoming."

HIS IDEA.
Mrs. Lumtum—"What! Invite the Gals to tea? Why they aren't in the Blue Book."
Mr. Lumtum—"Yes, but Gertie is there forty ways in Bradshaw."

ON COURSE
Farmer—"Don't be afraid, stranger. A barking dog never bites."
City Man—"A barking dog is mean enough without going any further."

HE DID.
"You tried hard to work that swell guy for a tip. Did he give you one?"
"Yes; he gave me two. He handed me a dime and told me to never judge a man's wealth by the clothes he wore."

MAJOR'S BUSY DAY

Had to Meet Scores of Visitors at His Office in City Hall—and Prepare at Least Four Speeches
For the first time in the 15 months that he has been in office Mayor O'Donnell was heard to say this morning: "This is my busy day."
Heretofore, even when on the jump to fill his numerous engagements, if asked if he was busy his honor would respond: "Fairly so," but today they did come speedily.
Opening up at 9 o'clock he gave his attention to preparation for speaking at the banquet of the board of trade and the Middlesex Society for the blind day exercises of the Greenhale school and the Y. W. C. A. incidentally receiving calls and listening to tales of some 35 people all before noon.
The noon hour was taken up with more callers and after rather a sandwich on the fly his honor was back to attend the meeting of the municipal council at 2 o'clock in the Centralville to make the Greenhale school at 2.30 and back to the Y. W. C. A. at 4. Then he rushed home and got into his dressing attire to be at Armistice hall at 6. He will leave Armistice hall at 9.30 and proceed to the Middlesex social club.

Card of Thanks
We extend our heartfelt thanks to the many friends, especially the employees of the Mohair Trust, who by their sincere expressions of sorrow, kind words and deeds, floral offerings and spiritual prayers have helped lighten the burden of grief caused by the death of our beloved daughter, and they shall ever be remembered. Signed,
Mrs. George Nagle and Family.

All Over America, the News of the Marvellous Dandruff Cures of Parisian Sage Has Spread

A few years ago there was introduced into America a cure for dandruff, falling hair and all scalp diseases. This hair renewer did not attract much attention for some months, until a progressive business man, hearing of several almost magical cures, decided to tell the American people of its mighty power to destroy the deadly dandruff germ.

Today, without any sensational or untruthful advertising, Parisian Sage is used extensively in almost every town in America. What has produced this great demand? Simply this: Parisian Sage does just what we are telling the readers of this paper it will do.

We claim, and we back our claim with our money back guarantee, that Parisian Sage is the most invigorating and rejuvenating hair tonic. It cures dandruff, stops falling hair and itching scalp. It makes the hair grow strong and vigorous, yet soft and lustrous. It is the only hair dressing that reaches the root bulb of the hair and destroys the dandruff germ.

And to the women who are reading this simple statement of fact, we want to say that Parisian Sage works wonders with women's hair. It will turn dull, bare and faded hair into beautiful, lustrous hair in a few days, and is the most pleasant and satisfying hair dressing any woman ever used.

Parisian Sage is sold for 50 cents a large bottle by Carter & Shurborne and at drug and toilet goods counters everywhere, or it can be obtained direct from the makers Groux Mfg. Co., Buffalo, N. Y., all charges prepaid.

NEW SUPERINTENDENT OF PARKS

John Woodbury Kernan Took Office Today and Visited Parks

John Woodbury Kernan took office today as park department superintendent. Mr. Kernan met Commissioner Hall this morning at the department's headquarters at city hall and went out to look over the parks and playgrounds. Members of the park commission who have met Mr. Kernan and who have conversed with him at considerable length are much taken with him and firmly believe that he will make good all along the line.

He has had thirteen years actual experience in engineering and construction work, seven of which were spent with the Bay State Railway Co., serving as draftsman, engineer, inspector and division roadmaster of the Lowell division. While serving as roadmaster of this division, which included the tracks in Lowell, Nashua, Lawrence, Haverhill, Newburyport and adjoining towns, his duties called not only for the maintenance of the lines but also construction of new track. He rebuilt many of the lines in the different cities and always employed local labor when available.

Work supervised by Mr. Kernan in this city included the building of the timber work as a retaining wall in First street, where the company had been troubled for years with dirt slides from a steep embankment, causing the outlet of a few thousands of dollars yearly.

He engineered a similar job at the Academy hills in Andover. He also built the coal trestle at the power house in Middlesex street, conceiving the idea of constructing part of same from cinders that were dumped on the lot. He used them in place of timber beams, making a net saving of quite a few thousand dollars.

Later Mr. Kernan was assigned as inspector and engineer on the building of a double track line through Middlesex Pells, which was through a rough, wild country, entailing many difficult engineering problems. Being in the Metropolitan park his work brought him in contact with the men and officials of the department. Quite a good opportunity was afforded him to observe and thereby acquire their methods of handling park work.

During the last few years Mr. Kernan has been in the employ of the Byrne Construction Co., contracting engineers, doing work all over New England and eastern New York state, having done several landscape gardening jobs. Mr. Kernan has a goodly number of very fine credentials from D. H. Winslow, C. E., department of agriculture, Washington, D. C., Capt. Geo. M. Thompson, civil and consulting engineer, Beacon street, Boston, Dabney Hunter, ex-city engineer, Melrose, Mass., Michael McDonough, general contracting engineer, Swampscott, Mass., John E. TURKS ACCEPT TERMS GRAND OBSERVANCE OF LOWELL DAY FAMILIES ARE FLEEING

CONSTANTINOPLE, April 1.—The Turkish government today declared that it unreservedly accepted the terms of peace proposed by the European powers.

The foreign office handed the Ottoman acceptance to the dean of the diplomatic corps this morning, accompanied by an expression of thanks to the powers for their mediation.

The terms of mediation offered by the European powers to Turkey and to the Balkan allies were as follows:

1.—The frontier of the Ottoman empire in Europe shall start at Enos and following the course of the Maritza then that of the Ergene shall end at Midia. All territories situated to the west of this line shall be ceded by Turkey to the allied states with the exception of Albania, the delimitation of which shall be fixed by the powers.

2.—The question of the Aegean islands shall be settled by the powers.

3.—Turkey shall abandon all claim to Crete.

4.—The powers cannot favorably entertain the demand for indemnity, but they will admit the allies to participate in the discussions of the international commission in Paris for an equitable settlement of their participation in the Ottoman debt and in the financial charges of the districts to be handed over to them. Turkey is to be allowed to take part in the labors of this committee.

The Greek powers declare at the same time that as soon as these bases are accepted hostilities shall cease.

On Friday last Bulgaria notified her acceptance of the offer of mediation, but persisted in her demand for a war indemnity and declined to agree to the suggested frontier and proposed to substitute a frontier line from Midia on the Black sea to the gulf of Saros at the top of the peninsula of Gallipoli.

BUSY DAY AT Y. W. C. A.

Educational Club Held Celebration

REV. WILSON WATERS AND MAYOR O'DONNELL SPEAKERS

Lowell Day Observance Was a Most Pleasing One—Program of Music Followed by Luncheon

Today was an active one for the members of the Educational club of the Young Women's Christian Association. Early in the afternoon, Rev. Wilson Waters delivered an address before that body, speaking on matters pertaining to education in which the club is deeply interested.

Later in the afternoon, His Honor Mayor James E. O'Donnell spoke at the Lowell day observance. This latter was a very enjoyable affair and here was rendered a program consisting of piano and vocal solos and recitations. Afterwards a rainbow luncheon was served by a committee. Mayor O'Donnell's speech was as follows:

Ladies of the Y. W. C. A.: The city of Lowell has much to be proud of, but to nothing can it point with more pride than to this beautiful building and the organization which maintains it. Lowell is not a city of houses, but has a transitory population and abounds in lodging houses and furnished rooms to which hundreds of young men and young women have resorted for abiding places.

A city, no matter how well governed it may be, holds out more or less temptation to the young woman without a home and unless her more or fortunate sisters offer her good association, good recreation and a good environment generally, being only of frail human nature the time may come when she will yield to the temptations that beset her. Thus, an organization of this nature, composed of representative women who devote their time and energies to the moral, mental and social welfare of the young women of Lowell at large, is of incalculable value to the community and should receive the encouragement of all creeds and classes. I doubt if any city in the commonwealth can boast of a more progressive and successful organization of young women, and I am confident that to similar organization can boast of a more beautiful or more complete home.

I have just come from the Green-hall school where it was my pleasure to address a most interesting gathering of the youth of our city whose minds are being carefully nurtured and developed through the influence of education; I now have the honor to stand before one of our city's greatest moral forces; I go hence to the board of trade to meet the public spirited citizens of Lowell who give actively of their knowledge and experience for the business welfare of the community, and I shall conclude the day as the guest of an organization, which aims to improve the social life of its members. Truly, the city of Lowell is to be congratulated on having such a variety of influences for good all working to make Lowell a better city and its citizens better men and women.

Apparatus and Members of Department Presented Imposing Pageant ---Many Visitors in City

This was one great big day for Lowell. It was "Lowell Day" in every sense of the word and the board of trade and others responsible for the event are to be commended and congratulated. The visitors who came from far and near were delighted with the very hearty receptions they received and Lowell added a goodly number of links to her chain of friends.

It is quite a long way back to the day when Lowell stepped the boundary from town to city. It is just seventy-seven years ago today that she became a city, and a great work has been done here since that time. Great buildings have been erected and her people have been good, Christian people. Lowell has had her ups and downs, but it's an old saying, and a true one, that you can't keep a squirrel on the ground. It is the disposition of Lowell people to keep on climbing and we are getting there every day.

We are not ashamed to look back upon our past and when we look into the long avenue of the future and see the good there is for each one of us to do, we realize after all what a beautiful thing it is to work, and to live and be happy.

The public and parochial schools observed the day by appropriate exercises and the board of trade was represented by work today.

EXERCISES IN LOCAL SCHOOLS

Many Speakers Deliver Addresses ---Medals for Prize Essays--- Patriotic Programs

Lowell day, which was generally observed about the city today, was fittingly celebrated in the various schools with exercises of an historic and patriotic character. The feature of the day for these schools was the awarding of the medals to the winners in the prize essay contest which was held under the auspices of the board of trade. The programs of the exercises included many essays dealing with the history of the city, readings and recitations, songs and addresses by representatives of the Lowell board of trade, who were delegated by that body to present the medals to the winners of the competition. In every case these exercises showed the good results of careful preparation on the part of pupils and teachers.

HIGH SCHOOL

At the High school the program was as follows: Declaration, "Lowell," F. T. Greenhalge; Mr. Max Goldman; quartet, "Oh, Who Will Cry the Downy," Edith B. Sanders; Dorothy I. Driscoll; Teresa McBurnett; Ethel B. Thompson; recitation, "The Lowell High School," Part I, Mr. Charles Ahels; reading, "The Lowell High School," Part II, Miss Katherine Derracott; solo, "The Vale of Dreams," Mr. Charles U. Whidden; recitation, "The Song of the Loon," Lieut. E. W. Thompson; Miss Pauline Carver; quartet, "Sweet Kitty Clover," Edith B. Sanders; Teresa McDermott; Dorothy I. Driscoll; Ethel B. Thompson.

HIGHLAND SCHOOL

At the Highland school a very elaborate program of exercises was held in honor of Lowell day. This had of course, been planned ahead and much time spent in its preparation and the good results of the efforts of all concerned were evident. The numbers included the following: Salute to the Flag and singing of "America," school recitation, "Our Flag," Walter Bagshaw; recitation, "Love of Country," George Lalime; recitation, "The True American," Edmund Douglas; singing, "Greenhalge Hymn," school children; recitation, "The Civic Creed," Roker Clapp; recitation, "Truth," Dorothy Stevens; song, "Winter Lullaby," Don-Jib Melton; recitation, "The Merry Stepan Thru," Mollie Washburn; recitation, "To a Waterfowl," Doris Brown; readings, "Historic Points in Lowell," Arnold Howard; Lillian Abbott; recitation, "What Makes a City," Annabel Gordon; reading of the prize essay, "Lowell in the Civil War," written and read by Marion Dexter. Then Mr. Abel Campbell, representing the board of trade made the presentation of the medal to Miss Dexter. His speech was as follows:

Abel O. Campbell's Address
Mayor O'Donnell at the graduation exercises of the Lowell Evening High school, last evening, said "The work of the chief executive of this city is replete with trials and tribulations." The same might be said about the work of a school committee. However, it is a pleasant task and is not

Desperate Flood Conditions Along the Ohio River—Water Continues to Rise

CAIRO, Ill., April 1.—Flood conditions along the Ohio river levee here are declared by the oldest citizens to be the most desperate in their time. The water is rising at the rate of about one foot a day and now stands two feet and eight inches from the top of the concrete wall built at the levee.

While this situation is not encouraging the reports of the weather bureau here of up-river and tributary conditions were enough to cause further alarm. No reports came of receding waters as far away as Cincinnati, while some tributaries were reported rising. It is generally believed that the high stage will not be reached before Wednesday night or Thursday.

The city is sending its women and children out on every train. The weather continues beautiful.

At a meeting between officials of Alameda county, the city of Cairo and Colonel D. J. Moriarty of the Seventh regiment, Illinois National Guard, it was agreed to place the entire situation in charge of Col. Moriarty.

The result of this, according to the colonel, will be the arrest of all persons who refuse to work.

Engineers were called into conference by the colonel and asked for descriptions of the weak points that special attention might be given them.

The Seventh regiment, which had headquarters in St. Mary's park today, moved its equipment into a large wharf load in Ohio. This places all the quarters off the troops on boats. On Mound City, it is said, a critical situation is developing. Nearly every home in the lowlands has been deserted and wagons loaded with furniture, trunks and household effects of every description are depositing them at railroad stations.

More Bodies Recovered
COLUMBUS, O., April 1.—With the recovery of three more bodies from wreckage in the west side of this city the toll of the flood disaster on that side stood at 16. The number of missing remains large and three flood victims have died within the last 24 hours as a direct result of the ordeal through which they passed before being rescued.

Hundreds of men were at work today attempting to recover bodies supposed to be buried under the huge piles of wreckage in the vicinity of Greenlawn cemetery. Martial law has been withdrawn from a considerable part of the flood-stricken area.

Constructive relief work in Ohio will be the object toward which the efforts of the relief organizations will now be bent, Gov. Cox announced today. A definite plan will be formulated tomorrow, when the state relief commission will confer with Gov. Cox, Miss Mabel Boardman, national secretary of the Red Cross and Ernest P. Bicknell, national director of the Red Cross.

without its compensations, and an occasion like this is one of them.

It is indeed a real pleasure for me, as a representative of the Lowell board of trade, to present a silver medal on behalf of the board to the pupils in the Highland grammar school who have written the best essay on a subject pertaining to the early history of Lowell.

The primary object of the board of trade in conducting this contest was to awaken and quicken the interest of the school children of Lowell in their native city.

You have all had birthdays, of course, and today is the 77th birthday anniversary of Lowell as a city. Today all Lowell rejoices in the fact that as a city it has much to be proud of.

The young writers of the school essays have brought out admirably the fact that Lowell was the first city to respond to the call for men in the days of the Civil war. And Lowell has been first in many other important matters. Lowell was the first city to have a steam railroad; Lowell was the first city to use a canal for commercial purposes; Lowell was the first city to utilize water for motive power; Lowell was the first city to have a telephone exchange; and the board of trade is constantly emphasizing Lowell's role in the past.

Lowell has a splendid educational system and I trust that you boys and girls who are being educated in the schools to become true sons and daughters of the best city in the United States. The future of Lowell depends upon the generation that is being educated in the schools today. It is up to you to make Lowell a better city than it has ever been before.

Lowell is still in the lead.

affords no genuine pleasure to present to Miss Marion L. Dexter this beautifully engraved medal, and I feel that she will always prize it as a cherished memento of her interest in her native city—Lowell.

GREEN SCHOOL

The Lowell day program at the Green school in Merrimack street was similar to that of the others, including the recitations, the singing of patriotic songs by the school children. The winner of the prize for the essay on Lowell in the Civil war was Miss McCarthy and she read her essay. Mr. Solon Stevens, who represented the board of trade at this school made a brief presentation speech, emphasizing the importance of the essays, and congratulating the children on their efforts. In particular he had words of congratulation for Miss McCarthy, winner of the essay in the Green school. Mr. Stevens' words were highly interesting and deeply appreciated by his listeners.

WASHINGTON SCHOOL

At the Washington school the children sang patriotic songs in chorus and there were a few recitations. The feature was the reading of the prize essay by Mary C. Overton, the winner in that school. Mr. George H. Worthen was the guest of honor at these exercises and in presenting the medal to Miss Overton, he made a brief speech on the topic concerning which the prize essays were written, namely, affairs of the city at the time of the Civil war. The population of the city, he said, was approximately 35,000 and of these, Lowell sent to war about one man from every seven of this population. The total number who enlisted, he said, was 5,000; of these, about 100 were killed or died of the hardships and diseases which the campaigns involved. Today there are, as far as he knows, about 135 living and they are scattered throughout the country. Mr. Worthen said that he has met former Lowell soldiers in California, Colorado and other far away states. Concluding, he spoke of the conditions of Lowell at the present time and the great advance made since the time of the Civil war. Mr. Worthen is well known as a veteran of that great war, having been in the most active campaigns. He finished by congratulating the winner on her good work.

PAWTUCKET SCHOOL

At the Pawtucket school another interesting program was rendered, as follows: Selection by Orchestra, "Boys in Khaki"; Bennett, "Star Spangled Banner"; school readings by Cecilia Crowe, Alice Maguire, Walter McDonald, Stephen Sullivan, Mollie Judd, Dorman McKinley, Harold Judge, Edward O'Connor, Mary Varnum and several musical numbers by orchestra and chorus. The final number was the reading of the prize essay, "Lowell in the Civil War," by Arthur Spence, who wrote it. Dr. Frank McAvinue made the presentation.

Youngsters With Pimples.

By Dr. True

A mother asks me how she shall remove pimples and humors that disfigure her child's face. My answer is very simple and direct, because all such blemishes are the result of poisons in the system that should be carried off in the excretions, but are not.

When anyone finds the skin becoming yellow, dry, scaly, or when blackheads, pimples or blotches appear, they should at once take my Dr. True's Elixir for stomach and bowels. This is a most remarkable remedy. It is wholly vegetable, mild and pleasant, but very effective.

It corrects a wrong condition of stomach and bowels, and sets these important organs in healthy activity, so that waste and poison are driven from the system. No mother need feel anxiety about facial blemishes on her child if she will give my pleasant remedy a chance to remove the cause back of them. And I urge anyone, young or old, who is now enduring this embarrassment, to follow the same course. It will certainly correct the evil.

I recommend, too, that they use Parker's 23-25 Cold Cream on face and neck every night. In this way they will make the skin soft and beautiful, as well as free of disfigurement.

Dr. McAvinue

Dr. Frank McAvinue, who always has something sensible to say, delivered a brief address in very simple language dealing with the principles of character that form the basis of good citizenship. In order to do right he told the children that it is necessary to know the difference between right and wrong. The good citizen should perform all the duties that fall to his lot in every sphere of life, duties to himself, to his country and God. In order to be prepared to exercise all these duties is a good citizen should, the boys of today should avail themselves of all the opportunities to learn what these duties are.

The speaker dwelt upon the importance of the medal to the winner.

A Dream of Colorado

Make It Come True

Cool, quiet mornings with a waking joy at being alive, stirring with drowsy wonder at the fragrant suggestion of pine in the air—days that are warm and sunshiny but never hot and oppressive, long walks or rides over mountain trails that wind through wonderful canyons, and by the riverside among scenery that cannot be described—a glory of mountain and valley, of stream and forest, of lake and waterfall, nature at her best unspoiled and undisturbed. An occasional gains of tennis or golf, under perfect weather conditions, lazy hours with a book or pencil, quiet days by the side of a brawling mountain stream casting for the speckled beauties to be found there; days spent in just loafing and pondering on the work and mysteries of Nature—that's the dream of Colorado that you can make come true.

Let me help you a bit, and tell you about the hotels and boarding-houses in Colorado, their charges and accommodations. Let me give you free maps and illustrated books about Colorado, and explain how easily and comfortably you can reach Colorado.

It's my business to send you a friendly hand, so drop in, or write a line, and let me help.

REFUGEES LEAVE CAIRO, ILLINOIS

540 Houses at Zanesville Swept Away—Society Girls Taking Care of Babies

CAIRO, Ill., April 1.—The Ohio river rose steadily through the night and at seven o'clock today stood at a point between 523 and 531. The population was still early and the fact that the water had substantially passed the 52 mark caused considerable anxiety. All expected that the day would prove the crucial one in the fate of the city. The crest of the flood is expected to reach here today and if the levees hold it is the belief that the worst will be passed. Much trouble was experienced during the night in the drainage district along the Big Four levee. Three times slides occurred and only valiant work on the part of those watching it saved the day. Dozens of carloads of sandbags were placed about the weak spots and serious trouble was averted. Water seeped through under the concrete wall into the main street of Cairo today but the levees have no signs of weakening. A large force of men worked all night placing sandbags and other holdbacks along the city waterfront. Refugees continued to leave the city all night and crowds are still waiting at depots to get out.

PRISON CONTINUES TO RECEIVE MESSAGES OF SYMPATHY FOR FLOOD VICTIMS

WASHINGTON, April 1.—Messages continue to come to President Wilson today from foreign rulers expressing sympathy for sufferers in the western flood. King George of England cabled:

"I am greatly distressed at the news of the disastrous flood and the grievous loss of life caused by them. I desire to express to Your Excellency my deep sympathy with yourself and the people of the United States in your misfortune."

Other messages were received from King Emmanuel of Italy and Sultan Ahmed Kadjar of Persia.

540 HOUSES SWEEP AWAY AND 500 READY TO COLLAPSE AT ZANESVILLE

ZANESVILLE, O., April 1.—Believing that the necessity for troops in this city has passed, Col. C. C. Weinbrecht, in command here, stated last night that he would ask for the withdrawal of the soldiers as he believed they were more urgently needed in Ohio river cities.

The Muskingum river is again in its banks, having fallen ten feet yesterday. Society girls are busy washing and taking care of babies, so mothers can clean their homes. Col. Weinbrecht reported that 540 houses had been swept away. Five hundred more are ready to collapse. A committee has been appointed to inspect numerous business structures that are considered in dangerous condition.

It will cost $40,000 to repair the "Y" bridge. Railroad traffic on the Baltimore & Ohio railroad east was resumed today, passengers walking two miles over the flood stretch to reach trains.

Man Goes Insane
A span and a half of the Third street bridge was found eleven miles down the river. The Zanesville Furniture Co.'s plant was found 12 miles below here. Dan E. Gary, the owner, who was considered wealthy, is panicky. A man named Simpson, who lost everything, has become insane.

The water supply was turned on at noon yesterday and the business district will have gas today. Electric lights are promised the last of the week.

THE MISSISSIPPI CONTINUES TO RISE AT MEMPHIS, TENN.

MEMPHIS, Tenn., April 1.—The Mississippi river registered 38 feet today, a rise of eight-tenths of a foot in 24 hours.

SECRETARY OF WAR GARRISON LEFT FLOODED DISTRICT FOR WASHINGTON TODAY

CINCINNATI, O., April 1.—Satisfied that he had accomplished all the good he could in the flood district, Secretary of War Garrison left Cincinnati for Washington early today. Owing to the high water, the secretary will be compelled to take a circuitous route. He will go by way of Knoxville, Tenn., Bristol and Lynchburg, W. Va.

THE STAGE OF THE OHIO RIVER WAS 69 FEET AT CINCINNATI

CINCINNATI, O., April 1.—The Ohio river here rose two-tenths of a foot during the night and early today the stage was 69 feet. Weather Forecasters Devereaux said he expected the river to rise another tenth, after which

AMUSEMENT NOTES

Opera House
The engagement of the Loneragan Players will close this week at the Opera House. The Loneragan Players, this, their last week, are presenting "The Confession," a play in four acts by James H. Hervey, and a very stirring play. It has been here before, but never with greater earnestness and ability, perhaps, than by the Loneragan Players.

If the attendance had been in keeping with the merits of the play, and the players, the house, last night, would have been crowded, but the attendance was small and there was little to inspire the players except the presence of the play itself.

The opening act shows a Roman Catholic priest, hearing the confession of a murderer. The man has sought him out because the weight of conscience is too heavy for him to bear. The priest grants absolution and the murderer departs. The illumination is given him that he must never allow any innocent person to be charged with the crime, but that he must, in such a case, shield any other suspect by assuming the burden of guilt himself.

It so happens that the brother of the priest, a well-to-do man, has words for the crime, but for the time before the latter is killed. The two grapple and during the encounter a shot is fired from somewhere, this shot causing the murder.

The priest's brother is tracked to his home and is there placed under arrest. Later on he is condemned to die for the crime, but for the meantime the real murderer has been arrested for another crime and is confined in prison for it. Knowing of the charges against the innocent person, he seeks out the governor, admits his guilt to him and then dies.

"The Confession" will be given twice during the remainder of the week. Relative to the closing, this week, of the engagement of the Loneragan Players, Manager Ralph A. Ward of the Opera House, said:

"The company will have finished the contract time of eight weeks on Saturday of the present week. There have been many contracts pending for months which could not be done. Some of them date as far back as November and it is simply impossible to avoid playing them. We could not have these companies breaking in on stock performances with any profit to the theatre, and so decided that it would be the best for all concerned to play the schedule as originally laid out. Beginning with the fall season, a permanent stock organization will be stationed at the Opera House, to continue throughout the season. Plans are under way at the present time for this. Options will be secured on the best of plays and during the summer months the company to play here will be selected with great care."

BOSTON OPERA CO. STARS

Muscle lovers of this city will soon be given an opportunity of hearing real grand opera at popular prices as the result of the efforts made by Manager Ward of the Lowell Opera House to bring an appreciation of Boston Opera Company artists here.

Ever since it was announced that the members of the Boston Opera Co. would make a short tour after the close of the regular season, Mr. Ward had made every possible endeavor to include Lowell in the list of cities to be visited.

Among the artists who will take part in the tour are Miss Evelyn Scotney,

HALLET BOSWORTH
Who is Appearing to Advantage in "The Turning Point" at the Playhouse This Week.

The sensational coloratura soprano who has been the season's only rival to the great Tetrazzini, Jose Mardones, generally accepted as the world's greatest mezzo, Alfredo Ramella, and Raoul Romito, the two sopranos who complete the vocal trio with the best on the operation stage. Rudolfo Fornari, for four years the first baritone of the Boston Opera Company, Miss Myrna Sharlow, a young dramatic soprano, whose marvellous voice has put her in the prima donna contraltos and Howard White, an exceptionally fine basso cantante.

Such an aggregation is seldom if ever heard outside of grand opera centers like New York or Boston, and Lowell is indeed fortunate in securing them for an engagement.

The program outlined for the tour will be partly concert and partly operatic in its nature. It will include several concert numbers without cost, and complete acts from well-known operas with costume. Seats go on sale tomorrow morning.

H. F. Keith's Theatre

"The Telephone Girls," a clever musical act with six pretty "phone girls" in fetching costumes, a most energetic manager, and several songs and joke girls, is the feature act at the H. F. Keith's Theatre this week. Eddie Drake is the new manager and to say that the rather unmanageable girls do not take kindly to him is putting it mildly. His attempt to benefit the service are met with disdain and indifference, but he is good natured enough to forgive the girls. They are so bright, witty and pretty that the audience forgives them, too. As the six girls types range from the most extreme slangy to the most extreme cultured, the audience is assured of comedy in the well known "Varieties," and a few more. The second part of the act is devoted principally to an elaborate setting of a scene from "The Telephone Girls," transformed into a river of spittles, do row, row, row, with a vengeance. In this act the manager is assisted by a young man and a few of the old ones. The six girls are impersonated by the Misses Mildred Bellman, Alva Wilson, Queenie Marvel, Laura Dean, Goldie Pemberton, and Alma Pemberton.

Martha Chapin and Fred Lewis, billed as the two dooney kids, send billed correctly give an exhibition of money songs, dances, and telepathy that is very looney and laughable. "The Tamer," played by Ernest W. Curtis and Miss Albert Florence, is an exceptionally clever sketch in which a much despised husband who has been tamed into submission turns the tables quickly but effectively and tames the tamer.

Cunningham and Marion who tumble and fall around as though they enjoyed it, are excellent comedians and acrobats.

Arthur, Richards and Arthur give a very refined musical act with some pretty songs and dances and some clever violin playing. One of the charming girls suffers a transformation before the end of the act and discloses a bright athletic young man.

Bert Wood, "the village cut-up," in trousers of the most extreme London style and with a very engaging smile, told stories in an inimitable drawl and played some surprising music on a mouth organ. He also did some eccentric dancing to his own "music."

"The Mermaids," two women, open the bill with a clever and unusual acrobatic act.

The subject of this week's talking picture is the laboratory scene from Goethe's Faust, in which the Mephisto is wonderfully played by Allan Ramsay. In voice and gesture the illusion is perfect and one can judge of the future possibilities of the talking picture from this splendid reproduction.

Merrimack Square Theatre

"Rainbow Songs," presented by Miss Grace Young, assisted by Howard White and Walter Weeks, is one number of an excellent bill that is given at the Merrimack Square Theatre this week. The sketch is very well staged and is sure to be a favorite among the patrons of this theatre. Miss Young plays her part in a pleasing way while most of the other members of the company do equally well.

This week marks the return of the Temple Players and they are seen in a pleasing sketch called "Sandy Vaino's Riddle." The piece has plenty of music and dancing and introduces several song numbers that are new to the people of Lowell. The comedy part of the entertainment is brought out by Miss Rose Maurier and Mr. Foley and Geo. Davis. Helen Drain, a new member of the company, sings "The Month of June is a Song of Love" and George Lewis, who needs no introduction to the theatre-goers of Lowell, sings "Time and Tide" and "Will You Be Waiting When My Ship Comes In."

A feature among the photo-plays this week is a film that lasts about ten minutes taken from the great parade held in this city on Saturday. The photo shows several views of different parts of the parade and also shows companies arriving from out of town and views of those who gathered on the sidewalks to witness the parade.

The speech of Patrick Henry is reproduced among the talking pictures and "The Whistling and Singing Farmer Boys" is given. Both are good, the speech of Patrick Henry being excellent. As last week the talking pictures are given without a hitch, and the movements of the performers are in perfect accord with the sound and voice of the vocal instrument.

Point," the initial performance of which drew a good audience to the Playhouse last evening. The humor delicately intermingled between the strong dramatic situation which the piece involves tends to add to its attractiveness; the satisfying manner in which the Drama Players, directed by Mr. Kendall Weston, bring the situations and the characters out to their own advantage, is a real treat.

"The Turning Point" is a play of real interest and one which the Drama Players delight in presenting. For it gives them the best of opportunities for a display of their real worth and for pleasing the audience. The opening is in Virginia, the scene representing a beautiful old fashioned Southern mansion. As to the story of the piece, to relate it here would mar the pleasure of those who are yet to witness the play.

The principal character, a Virginia, "Brent Brookbridge," is well portrayed by Mr. J. Anthony Smythe, who appears to just nature the right into the part, so naturally, in fact, that it shows no mechanical traces of the results of the required preparation. His part is not acted as though the words were placed in his mouth, but rather as though it was a part where he actually experienced the emotions which are called for by the production. Such is the pleasing style of Mr. Smythe's work.

"Alma Anderson" is in reality Miss Bertha Mann, but the latter throws aside her identity for a time to present this beautiful character and to delight the audience, a feat which she accomplishes admirably. Miss Bertha Mann's work is possessed of that quality of ease and there is naught of the mechanical recital of lines.

In justice to the other members of the cast it must be said that their acting is no less above the ordinary than that of those already mentioned. As "Dave Denny," Miss Hazel Dillon is remarkable good. The part which falls to his lot this week is a very difficult one which to his cleverness and ability was rather an advantage than a disadvantage.

GRADUATING EXERCISES OF EVENING HIGH SCHOOL; ADDRESS BY ASSISTANT SUPT. BURKE OF BOSTON

LOWELL DAY SUPPORTERS

P. J. McHUGH
PresidentMISS MARION V. M. SIMPSON
SecretaryMISS ANASTASIA L. HORNE
Treasurer

With an attendance that nearly taxed the capacity of Associate Hall, the graduation exercises of the evening high school were held last night and 78 young men and young women were awarded diplomas, the presentation being made by Mayor James E. O'Donnell. A very enjoyable musical program was rendered by Hibbard's orchestra, and the address of the evening was given by J. E. Burke, assistant superintendent of the public schools of Boston. Dr. Lambert presided and introduced the speaker.

The stage was fittingly decorated with the class color, green, while in the background was a large resolute of red and white. The graduates were all seated on the stage, the girls neatly attired in white and carrying large bouquets, while the boys wore black and on the laps of the coats were pinned large green pins.

At 8 o'clock the orchestra struck up "Light Cavalry" by Suppe, as an overture, and this was followed by the reading of an essay on "American Womanhood" by Mary Eleanor Lily Tucker, salutatorian, and written by Miss Marion V. M. Simpson. The young woman was warmly applauded at the close of her reading.

The other parts of the musical program rendered by the orchestra, Han Bojes director, was as follows: "Duo for flute and clarinet, 'Rondo' (Barnard), Messers. Bissonnette and Larkin; selection, 'The Opera Ball,' Kell; mazurka, 'Anorose,' Navarra; Mexican dance, 'Dark Eyes,' Moret; finale, 'Honor Bound,' Boehlein.

Mr. Burke's Address
The speaker of the evening was Mr. J. E. Burke of Boston and his address was very interesting. His subject was "Service" and his remarks were in part as follows:

"It seems to me that this life of ours is a life of joy primarily because it is a life of service. It matters very little what the character of the service may be, provided it be honest, disinterested service. All forms of human labor are ennobling. Indeed, we would think that manual labor, from its contact with nature and nature's laws, would inspire even more than intellectual pursuits.

"This service must be a personal service; and so we magnify the individual, and the individual service. Yet we realize that, while the profoundest sorrows and the most transcendent joys must be borne by the individual alone, yet the individual is incomplete.

"I would not say to these young people here tonight that it is necessary for every girl to become a nurse, a teacher, a stenographer, or a Joan of Arc; or that it is necessary for every boy to become a Nathan Hale or a Father Damien; but I would say that it is necessary for them to get into their lives the spirit of self-sacrifice. Then we find ourselves in the field of the brotherhood of man, and comprehend its significance. We have invited the world, and the world has generously responded. We have the world with us in these great cosmopolitan cities.

"We want to be very careful that our regard for our fellow men is not parochial, is not circumscribed. We want the sympathetic relation that is far-reaching.

"I do not know but we sometimes make a mistake in these cosmopolitan cities, in our failure to recognize racial traits, racial characteristics and racial peculiarities. I believe these should be recognized and cherished. I believe that these boys and girls whose fathers were born in other lands should enter into the spirit of all that is best in these nationalities from which they spring; then they should go out, as socialists with others, and extract all that is best in them. We do have these great racial traits that distinguish us from others, let us cherish and protect them; but at the same time let us not become parochial. We can unite, whatever our extraction may be, in the support of great principles. We all want good schools, we want a clean press; we want a wholesome theater; we want libraries and hospitals that contribute to the people's wants; we want good government; and we can unite in the attainment of these essential attributes of society. Then, having attained these, we can unite upon some great platform of principle, something like this: I care not how a man may differ from me socially, racially, politically or religiously; if he is an honest man, I will strike hands with him and together, unitedly, we will strive for and attain the advancement of that civilization of which we are a part, to the purpose that in the amelioration of the races here on American soil, there shall be produced a class of people better than any that have been evolved in all the cycles of time.

"My young friends, this form of service in which you and I are engaged must be a patriotic service. I do not mean here to teach patriotism. Patriotism comes to us in the air we breathe; but the Germans have a word which means the spirit of the times. It is that spirit of patriotism which we must keep alive. We hear much in these days about universal suffrage and it is all very good, it would not minimize the ballot; it gives us opportunity to approve or to rebuke, and so we believe in its extension, because that is the spirit of democracy. But in the mechanical performance of that duty, we perhaps exhaust five minutes. In other words the mechanical work of voting is inconsequential. It is the spirit of our service that we need to emphasize.

"Upon what depends the stability, the integrity, the endurance of this great republic that we love so truly? It does not depend upon the army or upon the navy; not in the tradition that goes backward and finds its origin in the divine right of kingship; not upon the great masses of mortar and brick and stone that go to make up the material aspect of your city. It does not depend upon our vast material resources. It depends upon the emotions, the sentiments, the pulse beats, the heart throbs, the lives, the hopes, of the great mass of people that go to make up this civilization of ours. This brings us, then, to a realization of the spirituality of our service; to a realization of the fact that these emotions and these faiths of ours, that they shall respond to everything that is noble and of good repute."

At the close of his remarks the orator was given a real ovation. Charles Henry McDermott wrote the valedictory on "American Citizenship" and the paper was read by George Robert Tobin.

The class gift to the school was a fine framed picture of Niagara Falls, the presentation being made by the class president, Patrick John McHugh. The gift was accepted by Dr. J. H. Lambert, chairman of the school committee, who paid a flattering tribute to the evening class of 1913, and closed by wishing them all success and prosperity.

Honorable Mention
The following names were read by Supt. Melloy, who explained that they had received honorable mention by the school authorities, and he exhorted them to carry through life the qualities that have enabled them to succeed in their school work.

For attendance: Leo A. Boucher, Richard F. Condon, Francis M. Flanagan, Thomas F. Lorigan, Nannay A. Namatalah, Mildred E. Stolf. For scholarship: Marguerite M. Casey, Caesar Coppens, Walter F. J. Higgins, Stephen F. Howard, Charles H. McDermott, Edward A. McMann, Frank H. O'Donnell, Marion V. M. Simpson.

Mayor O'Donnell's Address
The diplomas were presented by Mayor O'Donnell who said:

My Dear Graduates:
As mayor of Lowell the pleasant duty devolves upon me to present to you your diplomas and the congratulations and best wishes of the city of Lowell. I assure you, it is a pleasant duty in fact, for in this work-a-day city or town, where the majority have not the opportunity to avail themselves of the education afforded by our day system, you, by your voluntary attendance at this institution, have shown a shining example to all others. In this age of unceasing competition, training counts in every walk of life, and aside from the technical studies that you have pursued as students at this school, your work has trained you along other lines that will make you more valuable at whatever avocation you may employ your future efforts.

Your motto, I am informed, is "Ambition is the road to success." From the moment that you registered in this school you entered upon that road, for were you not possessed of an honest and firm ambition, you never would have come here and have remained.

It is a fault of human nature to overlook the advantages that are close at hand, and well-nigh to the city of Lowell. We offer to those who cannot avail themselves of the privileges of the day schools an excellent evening school system of elementary and high schools together with the newly organized industrial school. I firmly believe that our evening school system should be at least as good as our day school system, and from the success of the hundreds of your predecessors, I am inclined to believe that this particular school is as good.

There are two classes of evening school pupils, illiterates, who are obliged to attend and those who attend voluntarily. There are many in Lowell who, while able to read and write, would be greatly benefited by the evening school. Let us set forth to them the glories of your alma mater; explain to them that the advantages bestowed upon you are theirs to receive if they will but make the sacrifice that you have made to acquire a firm foothold on the road to success. May your goal be not far away and may health and happiness attend you on your journey.

NEW YORK CITY "DRY"
NEW YORK, April 1.—Mayor Gaynor's April 1 ukase—nothing to drink after 1 a. m.—struck the Tenderloin on a schedule time early today, causing the worst drought in a decade. In places where proprietors were inclined to be recalcitrant the police turned the lights out and unceremoniously forced patrons out to the sidewalks. One obstinate gentleman who insisted on finishing a lobster was arrested. From Harlem to Park row, with few exceptions, liquor selling ceased promptly at that hour. A few restaurants kept on serving food after that time but most of them closed entirely.

Being April Fool's day diners took the matter pleasantly.

The United Wall Paper Stores in the Colonial building have been making a special Lowell Day Sale all day long. They have displayed an announcement card in their wall paper windows, with a one dollar bill and a two dollar bill on each side of the announcement, telling the public that a one dollar bill is given them with every $5.00 purchase and a two dollar bill with every $10.00 purchase. They appreciate the effort the Board of Trade is giving the matter of inducing suburbanites to trade in Lowell and are returning to every $5.00 and $10.00 purchaser a $1.00 bill or a $2.00 bill, according to purchase. They report customers at going to press from almost all of the surrounding towns and cities.

J. PIERPONT MORGAN

The death of J. Pierpont Morgan has ended the career of a man who has been a greater power in American financial and commercial affairs and who was more intimately associated with those than any other man of recent times. By boundless energy and a wonderful business capacity he had risen from the position of an obscure banker until he had become the strongest controlling factor in the most stupendous financial operations of the age. The most amazing characteristic of Mr. Morgan was his versatility. Among his business interests were: private investment securities, reorganization of railroads, consolidation of industrial properties, war loans, interests in the coal fields of Pennsylvania, Ohio, and Indiana, control of 50,000 miles of railroads, large American and British ocean transportation lines, and European traction railways. Besides these most important and wonderfully diversified interests Mr. Morgan organized and floated the securities of the United States steel corporation in 1901, with a capital of $1,100,000,000, floated the United States bond issue of $2,000,000,000 during the Cleveland administration, and held directorships in countless other business enterprises.

It is evident that the genius of one man, however colossal, would be inadequate to meet the multitudinous demands of such varied and important interests as those for which the house of Morgan stands. It was all important that he should leave the administration of affairs to others, and in this was shown another side of his great ability. From the first he surrounded himself with men of genius and great executive ability, and although he always was the director in more than name, his subordinates carried out his policies to the letter, and made possible the vast consolidation of widely differing phases of business. He was quick to discover and appreciate ability in others, and during his long career he raised many obscure men to positions of great importance, realizing their business ability and latent power. He therefore leaves the conduct of his stupendous affairs in the hands of his son, J. P. Morgan, Jr., and a brilliant body of financiers who promise to carry out the plans of the great banker and financier who has died in the historic city of Rome.

The scene of Mr. Morgan's death recalls another phase of his varied career. In the world of art his name had become as famous as in the world of finance. He was a liberal patron of the arts, a connoisseur, a collector. He has enriched America by priceless treasures of painting, sculpture, tapestries, manuscripts, curios, and all forms of ancient and modern art. Whether the object he coveted was the stairway of an antique French chateau, the court of a Spanish palace, the pulpit of an Italian church, or the pride of a private Florentine gallery, he usually found means to accomplish his end and secure possession of the treasure. So great was his activity in purchasing and collecting that he was feared by the foreign governments, and in some cases special laws were framed to prevent J. P. Morgan from taking some valued treasure out of the country. He was president of the Metropolitan Museum of Fine Arts, New York, and some of his most valued pictures, sculptures, and other objects have been deposited there. About a year ago he gathered together the bulk of his art objects which had been loaned to galleries all over the world and donated them to the New York museum. So large and important is this collection that a special wing is now being constructed for its reception. Although for years J. Pierpont Morgan has been the most powerful influence in the financial affairs of America, if not of the whole world, his name will be better commemorated in the coming years because of this association with art. In finance as in art he was the modern Lorenzo de Medici, while his operations in the financial world surpassed those of the great Medici of Florence.

Although the report of J. P. Morgan's illness a few weeks ago had an immediate depressing influence on the stock market, his death has not materially changed the financial outlook. Undoubtedly this is because the news of his illness prepared the world for the second greater calamity and plans were made accordingly in advance. So wonderful and widespread was his influence that had his death been sudden and unexpected it might have immediately precipitated the financial panic that seems to have been averted now by carefully laid plans.

THE CHINESE LOAN

A few days ago a representative of an American financial syndicate called to Washington to acquaint President Wilson of the fact that a group of American bankers stand ready to advance to China a short term loan of ten million dollars, and a later long term loan of ten times that amount. Before entering on any negotiations, however, they wish to assure themselves that the government will take no action that would interfere with their designs or participate in and was in the transaction. The attitude of the syndicate is expressed in the words of Mr. Sears, their representative who after having seen the president, gave out this statement: "We want only a free hand. We heartily approve the administration's policy in withdrawing governmental aid from the six-power loan."

The recent well known action of President Wilson in this withdrawing governmental aid and approval from a plan such as is now proposed to furnish a loan to the new Chinese republic has received world-wide attention and general approval both here and abroad. It is something new in these days to find the head of a government actuated by such a high ideal as was here shown, as the aims of diplomacy are usually directed towards the material and selfish advancement of the nation with the moral issue as a secondary consideration. Of course no one thought that "the dollar diplomacy" towards the troubled republic, which found favor in the Taft administration, was prompted by philanthropic motives, and as the terms of the loan would have imposed very restrictive conditions, to meet which would be extremely difficult for China in her present circumstances, such a move as was contemplated would have been a check and handicap to the liberty of the new republic.

The present example of a business firm making sage of the attitude of the president before entering on a transaction of such magnitude and far-reaching consequences as the proposed loan, is one of the healthiest signs of the times. It speaks volumes for the weight of the moral influence exercised by the president and points unmistakably to the fact that his utterances regarding the government's policy towards financial operations are taken seriously and are not regarded as an empty play of politics. If the aims of the syndicate are legitimate, it is not probable that the chief executive will interfere, as a loan such as the intended is a matter of private business which need in no way hamper the government in its international relations with the new Chinese republic. It is certain that if anything in the proposed negotiations are contrary to fair play, the president will speak and act without delay, as he has already demonstrated his desire to have justice and equity as the basic principles on which to form all our relations with the foreign powers. Then again his attitude was made known so well and so plainly at the time of his withdrawal of government support from the six-power loan that it is very improbable that any American financial syndicate would seek his approval before undertaking measures which are contrary to his publicly avowed principles. China stands badly in need of money as the work of reconstruction, begun by the new government, takes in every possible phase of national endeavor, and if the terms are not too severe, the loan suggested by the American syndicate would prove a great boon.

BOARD OF TRADE LIBERALITY

While advocating reforms and suggesting theoretical improvements it certainly cannot be said that the Lowell board of trade is not practical. In preparing for the observance of Lowell day the directors have provided free transportation to the city from within a radius of many miles, and they have thereby shown a spirit of energy, enterprise, and liberality that deserves the warmest commendation and support from the community. This providing of free transportation has meant a large expenditure of money which is meant to benefit ultimately, not the board of trade but the merchants and manufacturers of the city.

The directors of the board of trade are not men of leisure. They have large and varied personal interests that engage their attention and take up most of their time. In giving of this time and attention to matters of public interest and welfare they are actuated by a spirit of civic pride, for there is no immediate return to them except the feeling of gratification born of good work nobly planned and well accomplished. Such a spirit is worthy of generous support and cooperation. If we all show our appreciation, by helping them in their many reforms, we can do much to make Lowell a greater city and a better place to live in, both for ourselves and the citizens of the future.

Seen and Heard

Some of the young people who start out with the idea that they were born to accomplish a great work in life live and die without having accomplished anything. I wonder they neglect the little tasks that daily come to them to do.

If men were not so conceited, women would have a harder time, because it wouldn't be so easy for them with a little history to get everything they want.

Thousands who expected that Lieutenant Walsh would appear in the parade were disappointed at not seeing him, but he had a little parade of his own nevertheless and was cheered by hundreds who recognized him in Middlesex, Central and Merrimack streets.

In Middlesex, Central and Merrimack streets. The lieutenant-governor was quickly recognized all along the line and was given an ovation.

The demonstration on Saturday was not without its efforts of romance, and Mayor Hurley, the city's famous chief executive and noted match-maker, his honor was accompanied by his secretary, Miss Eva Wilson, and Miss John DeLacy of Salem and Miss Ida Cronk, of Houlton, Me., who is visiting in Salem. Miss Cronk is a sprightly young blond, each wearing of manner as she is fair of face and it is the ambition of Mayor Hurley to find her a husband before her return to the Pine Tree state. The party had not been in the city hall long before the mayor's attention was attracted to Lowell's hunting city messenger, Owen Monahan, who was on the jump continuously in his effort to make every one comfortable and at home.

Who's that dapper little fellow? asked Mayor Hurley. "That's Owen Monahan, our dandy city messenger," responded City Solicitor Hennessy, to whom the mayor addressed his remarks.

Is he married? asked the Honorable John W.

"Not yet," answered Squira Hennessy.

Good. How does he vote?

"A demmy. Strong," was the reply.

Great! That's all I want to know. They need them in Maine.

Come here Owen, my boy. I want you to meet the mayor.

Mayor Hurley was led blushing before the ladies and introduced. Mayor Hurley informed the city messenger that he was now in the store for the traveling through life in single harness and then his honor proceeded to eloquently set forth the charm and eligibility of the lady. The latter evidently knew what was in store for her, for she held up her end of the rope most gracefully. But poor Owen who had brought order out of chaos at many a riotous caucus and who had held firmly to the Post credentials, defying all efforts to make him give up at the celebrated Post-Banilla convention in Boston, was completely befuddled by a few minutes and stood speechless, his face enveloped in a 22 karat blush as the mayor put an eloquent word-picture of his future as the democratic leader of the state of Maine into one of the Pine Tree state's prettiest daughters as his help-met.

It was some time before Owen got back on the job as a member of the reception committee and while he refuses to discuss the outcome of the affair, it can be proved by witnesses that when the mayor left Lowell Saturday night Owen was right there at the depot.

EDITORIAL COMMENT

Conservation

New Bedford Times: The flood situation in Ohio and Indiana emphasizes the enormity of the problem of conservation. The United States must solve it proper value is to be placed upon life and property. Within the last year swollen rivers have exacted frightful toll. To guard against a repetition of these staggering catastrophes, state and federal governments must apply themselves to the problem with greater diligence than ever. The life and industry of great sections of the country are in constant peril so long as present conditions are permitted to continue.

False Attitude

Poster's Democrat: It is a fair criticism of the attitude of the New York Yacht club toward the challenge of Sir Thomas Lipton for a race for the America's cup that it is more inclined to view it as a legal problem than as a sporting proposition. The statements that have been made and in its communications with Sir Thomas it acts as if it was upholding an abstruse constitutional principle and that an international yacht race that would be fair to all concerned was secondary consideration.

Chinese Thank

Worcester Post: The Chinese government thanks President Wilson for his action on the six-power loan question. Only recently again what was generally known, that the scheme was to force upon the new republic several times more money than she wants, accompanied with a sacrifice of her independence as security. Moretown, Vermont.—"I was troubled with pains and irregularities for sixteen years, and was thin, weak and nervous. When I would lie down it would seem as if I was going right down out of sight into some dark hole, and the window curtains had faces that would peek out at me, and when I was out of doors it would seem as if something was going to happen. My blood was poor, my circulation was so bad I would be like a dead person at times. I had female weakness badly, my abdomen was sore and I had awful pains."

ELECTION IN CHICAGO

Municipal Officials Being Voted for Today

CHICAGO, April 1.—One judge of the superior court, city treasurer, city clerk and 37 aldermen were voted for in the election today. In a number of wards the contests for aldermen have been especially bitter and the election commissioners have had many requests for extra police protection. The democrats, republicans and progressives have full tickets in the field.

Arbitration Hearings
NEW YORK, April 1.—At the resumption of the arbitration hearings in the matter of demands of the Brotherhood of Locomotive Firemen and Enginemen against the eastern railroads it was announced today that the date for the arbitrators' decision had been extended from April 2 to April 23. Both sides needed more time than first allowed to submit their cases and the extension was mutually agreed upon.

Turkish War
LYNN, Mass.—The war has been quite as remarkable as the Russo-Japanese conflict. When it began the force that could be brought against Turkey was little known and hardly appreciated. Turkey has always pulled out of difficulties by working one European nation against the other, and it was thought that her latest trouble would be settled in the same manner. But the war has been full of surprises, and the end of Turkish rule in Europe is very near.

It will be hard for Massachusetts to realize that the son of Nathaniel Hawthorne is now "No. 41,435."—Boston Journal.

Salem News: For our own part, we do not believe that Massachusetts is giving itself any special concern over the matter. Here and there, sundry sentimentalists are seeking to create a feeling in the state. Against this is to be placed the apathy and indifference of Hawthorne himself. If he has manifested any evidence of contrition, or shown himself entitled to pity, people nearest to him during his life and sentencing have failed to observe it.

MIGHT REDUCE INSANITY
State Could be Saved

$2,000,000 Annually

BOSTON, April 1.—Half the cases of insanity in Massachusetts are due to avoidable causes, and their prevention would save the commonwealth about $2,000,000 annually.

This statement was made last night in Lorimer hall, Tremont temple, by Judge Harvey H. Baker, of the juvenile court, at the opening of the mental hygiene exhibit and conference, which is to continue until next Friday afternoon.

Judge Baker, who is president of the newly organized Massachusetts Society for Mental Hygiene, made the introductory address. He explained that the aim of the society is to work for the conservation of mental health, raise the standards of care for those suffering from or in danger of developing insanity, and familiarize the public with methods of treatment.

Prof. Stewart Paton, of Princeton university, called insanity "a special form of disease or imperfect adjustment." Pointing out that there are more insane in our institutions than students in our universities and colleges, he traced the fact to poor heredity, bad educational surroundings, and in situations too difficult for adjustment. To prevent these maladjustments he urged better opportunities for training medical men in psychiatry and a reorganization of the schools.

Dr. Charles W. Eliot took for his subject the whole field of preventive medicine in relation to insanity and disease of the nervous system. He showed the connection of these diseases with bad housing, congested city

BOXING, GOLF
AND ATHLETICSFamous Athletes, Who in Their Respective Seasons, Are Heroes of Thousands,
Have Pet Hobby When Off Duty—How Some of the Stars Enjoy Themselves

Have you ever noticed that every athlete, amateur or professional, who has become famous has a pet hobby? Well, it's so.

Take Christy Mathewson, the New York Giants' famous pitcher, for instance. Matty dotes on checkers and likes to play the game almost as well as he does baseball. He competed in several tournaments and came out with honors. During the training season, Matty meets all comers and can be seen at the square board almost every evening indulging in his favorite hobby.

There are many star ball players who have taken up golf during the past few seasons and have become experts in this branch of sport. "Big Chief" Charley Bender and Jack Coombs of the Philadelphia Athletics are considered the best golfers in the junior baseball organization. In the National league Heinie Zimmerman of the Chicago Cubs is considered the star golfer. It is said that Heinie has gone around the course in eighty and is thinking seriously of entering one of the tournaments next fall. Ball players claim that golf is a fine method of preparing for opening of the baseball campaign. In the two big leagues there are at least seventy pill toppers who have taken up golf.

Ty Cobb, Detroit's great player, declares next to baseball the automobile game is the best. Still, Ty would sooner spend hour after hour playing with Ty Junior than anything else.

Hans Wagner of Pittsburgh is an expert basketball player and has a team of his own.

This winter Wagner's team won forty out of forty-one games played. Bonus was the star of the lot. Frank Chance believes growing oranges in Glendora, Cal., is one of the greatest things in the world outside of baseball. Tris Speaker and Joe Wood of the Boston Americans are farmers, and so is J. Franklin Baker of the Athletics.

Now look at the fighters. Jim Corbett believes he is a greater actor than he was a fighter. Jim Jeffries devotes considerable of his leisure time to playing baseball. Ad Walgast when not training for a mill is a farmer in Cadillac, Mich. He is also an automobile speed bug. Adolph likes nothing better than to tear up the roads with his auto. Jack Johnson is another. Some time ago the heavyweight champion believed he could defeat any autoist in the world. Much of the contest in the auto line was taken out of him two years ago when he was defeated by Barney Oldfield in a match race at Sheepshead Bay, N. Y. When Carl Morris' fighting days are over it is believed he will seek a position as a stenographer and typewriter. Recently Carl purchased a machine, and he now believes he can operate it as fast as any expert. Next to fighting, Luther McCarty thinks cow-punching is the greatest sport. K. O. Brown thinks he is a real society leader when he dons a full dress suit and high hat.

Most of the wrestlers are farmers. Frank Gotch, the world's champion, does the overalls and his big hat and walks miles behind the plow. Fred Ford, "Farmer" Burns and several other mat stars do the same. Zingora is a book worm. Isling, the middleweight champion of Europe, is a camera fiend.

Ralph Rose, the famous shot putter, believes he can defeat any amateur wrestler in the country. When not at his law practice or breaking records with the shot Ralph is doing mat work. "Chief" Meyers, the Giants' star catcher, harbors the thought that law is the only business in the world worth while outside of baseball. It is the same with all others.

St. Louis critics are crowning young Baumgardner with pitching laurels greater than Walter Johnson ever was invested with.

In addition, such wise experts as

1—Ty Cobb and Ty Junior. 2—Ralph Rose. 3—Christy Mathewson, on playing checkers with Coach Robertson. 4—Jack Coombs. 5—"Chief" Bender. 6—Henry Isling. 7—K. O. Brown. 8—Ad Walgast. "Chief" Meyers. 10—Jim Jeffries. 11—Carl Morris.

George Stovall. Bobby Wallace and Lou Criger have gone on record as saying that Baumgardner has such tremendous speed and other promising points that they have pronounced him as having "more" than the Idaho phenomenon.

Frankie Conley is now Don Fanchito, the torador. He has announced his intention of forsaking the light game and of donning the spangles of the bull ring. Frankie of Kenosha, Wis., bananaweight, who wore the bananaweight championship crown at one time, has been fighting supper hour matches in El Paso, Tex., in recent months, but he has put all the boys of his class in the emergency hospital for treatment and signs for more fighters to conquer.

Enter Don Felix Rodriguez, impresario of the Junco bull ring.

"Why is it not that such a very fine fighter he not fight the bull?"

Happy thought! Frankie felt for the mental suggestion immediately and went to Juarez to put on the milks with an old dehorned toro which been the bull bull for the bull ring. Frankie qualified in the cape work tried out other stunts on the antiquated bull with much success.

When the Baltimore club sold J. Knight to the New York American, few years back Manager Dunn was record that Knight was the best stop he had ever seen in a league. Knight did well for a season, then blew up. Now Dunn is boasting Claude Derrick, whom he sold to the same club, and he considers him the greatest ever.

There is just one thing against Derrick, proving the wonder that D predicts, and that is that Claude M let him go. That Mark person is in the habit of turning loose any players who give promise, and when sent Derrick to Baltimore last season he undoubtedly had good reasons for doing.

The Philadelphia to Bermuda boat race will start from Philadelphia on Saturday, June 7.

CO. G WON FROM CO. K SAGO-LOWELL LEAGUE

Winners Took 9 of the 12 Points

Company G again came to the front last night with a flash of the form that carried them to the head of the league at one time in the tournament. Co. G took nine of the possible twelve points in their athletic contests with Co. K at the Westford street armory. With the exception of bowling the Co. G men were far superior to their opponents although the shooting match was rather a close thing.

Co. K failed to put a basketball team on the floor last night and the game went to Co. G by default. Co. G has the strongest team in the armory in this form of sport and the Co. K men were willing to concede them the victory.

An exhibition game was played, however, for the benefit of the spectators, with Co. G on the winning end of a 29 to 17 score. Games of the winners played a great shooting game, scoring eleven baskets from the floor and giving an all round exhibition of clever basketball.

St. Peter also played a strong game for the Co. G team.

Company G won the shooting match by six points. Lieutenant Doyle of Co. G was high man with a score of 77 to his credit.

Company K won the bowling game although the Co. G team took one string and the point that went with it. Captain of Co. K put up the highest total of 288. Keough had the highest single, 151.

The Foundry and Kitson
Teams Winners

The Saco-Lowell bowling league rolled off two games according to schedule last night. The Foundry team were the winners in their match with the other team and the Kitson rollers defeated the Shippers. Neither game was very close. The highest score was made by Doyle of the Kitson team. The Henze machinists won their game from the Testers by the narrow margin of four pins in their Heinze Electric-C. S. Cartridge league contest. The game was close and exciting throughout. Mullen's total of 291 was high.

The Parcel Post bowling team defeated the Plumbers last night by over 70 pins. The winners took the first and last strings by large totals. Sheppard of the Plumbers was high man with a total of 224.

The Velvetton Dept. team were badly outplayed when they met the Merrimack Repair shop bowling team last night. The final score stood 1332 to 1268. Fortier and Panton of the winners were tied for first place honors with a total 284. The summaries of the various games follow:

GREAT INTEREST IN BOUT

Between Gallant and Dohan--Other Bouts

The Lowell A. C. will offer for its star attraction on Friday evening a 12 round bout between Gilbert Gallant, the hard hitting Chelsea lightweight, and Johnny Dohan, the doughty little New Yorker. The pair were matched to appear here several weeks ago but that week the meeting was discontinued. Since then both have been anxious to clash and their offering Friday night is looked forward to with pleasant anticipation by the members. Gallant has gained many friends here by his exhibition against George Alger and his clever fighting was well appreciated by all who witnessed the bout. Since he first appeared in Lowell Dohan has won a host of admirers and his 12 round battle with McDonough is still a topic of much discussion. At that time a great many were of the opinion that Dohan was entitled to at least a draw. Dohan is supremely confident that he will win Friday night's match and expects to accomplish the feat with quick dispatch. The show consists of four matches, two preliminary contests and a semi-final match between the clever little fellows, Johnny Cooper of Boston and Young Morgan of Manchester. The semi-final match should prove a very interesting number, as both are clever and aggressive boxers. Morgan is popular here and his work has met with great favor. Cooper is ex-national amateur champion of his class and comes here with a great record.

CABLEGRAM TO TEDDY

Suffragettes Seek Aid in Behalf of Miss Emerson

LONDON, April 1.—The campaign was continued today with more energy than ever on behalf of Miss Zelle Emerson of Detroit, Mich., the militant suffragette who is undergoing two months' imprisonment in Holloway jail for window breaking and whose case has awakened widespread interest owing to her sufferings from the forcible feeding in prison after she had started a hunger strike.

A cablegram was sent to Theodore Roosevelt by Beatrice Harraden, the authoress and suffragette, which said: "I cannot believe that American men, a number of whom expressed to me during my recent visit to America their horror at the system of forcible feeding will remain indifferent when they learn that their fellow countrywoman, Miss Emerson, is now being forcibly fed in Holloway jail and is in a precarious condition. Surely they will wish to protest against a continuation of this barbarity."

Following a suggestion made by Baron Von Horst of San Francisco a large number of American suffragists are collecting various instruments used in the forcible feeding of prisoners. These include screws and pliers used to force the jaws apart, feeding tubes and other utensils. The collection has been lent by doctors friendly to the suffragists. It will be exhibited first in New York and then in other American cities.

NEW TREASURER BUSY

Checking Up Money in the Department

WASHINGTON, April 1.—With the induction into office of a new treasurer of the United States the money in the treasury has to be checked and the induction of former Gov. B. of North Dakota as treasurer is of course a big job.

The work now is going forward the checking of accounts. With finished the money in the vaults be hauled out and counted but instead of counting it twice by place as been done in several instances amount this time will be checked the package. This course has been taken in order to save time, as it been only about three months since the money was counted last. She the piece by piece could be followed is said that it would take at least 10 months to finish the job.

Open a new account this week. The Lowell Five Cent Savings Bank Saturday is "Quarter Day."

LATE REV. JOHN T. LEE

Remains Were Laid to Rest This Morning

IMPOSING SERVICE HELD AT ST. MARGARET'S CHURCH

Large Delegation of Clergymen Present—Jefferson People Paid Tribute to Former Pastor

After solemn services conducted at St. Margaret's church in Stevens street, the remains of the late Rev. John T. Lee, a native of this city, and former pastor of St. Mary's church, Jefferson, Mass., where for 15 years he preached the gospel tenderly consigned to the lowly resting place in the Catholic cemetery. The funeral was attended by a large number of clergymen from all over the state, as well as by a large delegation of parishioners from Jefferson. There were also delegations from the Knights of Columbus of Worcester, the local Fourth degree of the K. of C. and the teachers of the Lowell public schools, headed by Saint, Hugh J. Molloy.

The long cortege of mourners left the home of deceased's sister, Miss Alice T. Lee, 12 South Walker street, at 5:45 o'clock and wended its way to St. Margaret's church, where solemn services were held. The celebrant of the mass was Rev. Orono T. Lee, the first to celebrate mass at St. John's hospital, and counted a host of friends in this city.

The choir, under the direction of Prof. Frederick G. Bond, which was augmented for the occasion, rendered the Gregorian mass, Mr. Louis Gull-bault presiding at the organ. The solos of the mass were sustained by Messrs. James E. Donnelly, John J. Dalton, Edward Shea, and Miss Katherine Hennessy. Before the mass the office for the dead was sung by the attending clergymen, Rev. John A. Deegan, pastor of St. Columba's church, and Rev. John P. Burns of St. Peter's church, joining the solos.

At the offertory Mr. James E. Donnelly sang "Jesu Salvator Mundi," and at the elevation Mr. J. J. Dalton rendered Rosemary's "O Meritum Passionis," and while the body was being borne from the church the choir rendered the "De Profundis," the solos being sustained by Mr. Dalton and Mr. Shea.

The choir of the mass Rev. Philip O'Donnell of Boston, delivered a brief eulogy, referring to the good work done by deceased during his 36 or 37 years of priesthood. He took for his text these words from the gospel: "He who lives and believes in Me shall not see death forever." The reverend gentleman spoke of Fr. Lee as a resident of this city, and also of his days at college, which he said he remembered well. He said the priest had mightily helped himself so that day he might meet Christ face to face. He spoke at length on the work accomplished by deceased as a priest in Spencer, Milford and Jefferson and other places where he preached the gospel, and said every one who met him wished to meet him again for to know him was to love him.

The hearers were: John Nolan and William W. Murphy, both of Lowell, and William Pendergast, Thomas Hennessy, William Sullivan, F. Rivers, Arthur Fostere and William Harrington, all of Jefferson, Mass.

The ushers at the house and church were: William Cawley, Thomas Kelley, Elias McQuade Jr., George Scannell, W. A. Driscoll and J. P. Grant.

The members of the Fourth degree, K. of C. of this city were headed by Dr. P. F. Carroll. Another delegation of the Knights of Columbus from Worcester consisted of the following, who represented Alabamra council: Rev. Dr. J. J. McCoy, Edward J. McMahon, John J. Kitzredge, John R. Dyer, Dr. W. J. Higgins, Thomas J. Carver, James F. McCarthy and Frank H. Murray, the latter of the Fourth degree.

MAYOR'S BUSY DAY

Had to Direct Scores of Visitors at His Office in City Hall—And Prepare at Least Four Speeches

For the first time in the 15 months that he has been in office Mayor O'Donnell was heard to say this morning: "This is my busy day."

Heretofore, even when on the jump to all his numerous engagements, it asked if he was busy, His Honor would respond "fairly so," but today they did come so speedy.

Opening up at 9 o'clock he gave his attention to preparation for speaking at the banquet of the board of trade, and the Middlesex Social club, the Lowell day exercises of the Greenhalls school and the Y. W. C. A. incidental to receiving calls and listening to tales of some 25 people all before noon.

The noon hour was taken up with more callers and after eating a sandwich or the fly His Honor was back to attend the meeting of the council, but council at 2 o'clock he contrived to make the Greenhalls school at 2:30 and back to the Y. W. C. A. at 4. Then he rushed home and got into his evening attire to be at Associate at 6. He will leave Associate hall at 6:30 and proceed to the Middlesex Social club.
